

Searchers fear killer may have slipped dragnet

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) — Searchers found a newly-discarded shirt and jacket today in a sweep of a rugged area near here where a man thought to be the killer of three Girl Scouts was believed to be hiding.

Meanwhile, searchers expanded the 10-square mile perimeter of the sweep as fears mounted a man seen in the area Thursday might have slipped out during the night.

State police, including sharpshooters, along with other law enforcement officials, continued the search south of an area where a running man was spotted by a farmer Thursday afternoon.

Officials said the man could have been Gene Leroy Hart, a 33-year-old fugitive charged Thursday with three counts of murder in the slayings.

The hilly area is near Skunk Mountain, just three miles from the camp where three Girl Scouts were sexually molested and dragged from their tent June 13.

"If he gets into that area, there's no section lines for five miles," said Doug Littlefield, an area resident for 25 years. "You can't hardly block those woods...that a man can't get right past you just a couple of feet away."

More than 150 volunteers and a police aircraft were also involved in the search as helicopters and tracking dogs were kept at the ready.

The brown fatigue-type jacket and T-shirt were found hours after the search began at 6 a.m. Officials speculated the items could have been taken in burglaries reported in the area following the slayings, but that connection had not been made.

State Bureau of Investigation agents took plaster casts of foot prints found on a ridge ahead of the line of searchers.

Lt. Kenneth Van Hoy, state police public information officer, said one of the tracking dogs being used in the search returned with wounds which appeared to have been inflicted by someone wielding a branch or small club. There was speculation the dog could have confronted the man being sought and been beaten.

The man spotted running across an open field Thursday was reportedly carrying two weapons, police said. Mayes County Sheriff Glen "Pete" Weaver said the weapons could have been a .20-gauge shotgun and a .22-caliber rifle taken from a farmhouse in the area a few days ago.

Searchers caught two glimpses of a running figure, but the search was called off at about 10 p.m.

Weaver told volunteers in a 6 a.m. briefing to form lines one to three miles in width, and be on the lookout for any fresh evidence of living sites.

"Don't only look for this, but watch those trees," Weaver said. "He will damn sure climb a tree and let you walk under him."

Weaver warned searchers that the man they were looking for could be armed and dangerous.

Mayes County Dist. Atty. Sid Wise emphasized to searchers that they leave any potential evidence for technicians to process.

About the same time the man was sighted Thursday, Wise was filing three charges of first-degree murder against Hart, 33, a convicted rapist and kidnaper who has been at large since he escaped from the county jail in 1973.

Hart was convicted of the rape of a Tulsa woman shortly before he broke out of the County jail at nearby Pryor in 1973. He has remained at large.

Tattered photographs of three women found near the death scene provided the break in the case after authorities linked them to Hart, who has pending sentences for rape, two counts of kidnaping and four counts of first-degree burglary.

Hart's name had surfaced earlier and the decision to issue a warrant came after it was reported he may have developed the photographs of the women.

The pictures were taken at a 1968 wedding of a couple in the Granite-Mangum area in southwestern Oklahoma.

Hart attended the wedding with amateur photographer Lewis Lindsey, who at the time was a clerk and photographer at the Granite State Reformatory, officials said.

House panel again endorses guzzler's tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee reaffirmed its support today for a gas-guzzler tax that would become effective with 1979 model cars and eventually save nearly 200,000 barrels of oil daily.

The panel waded through a tangled two-hour debate that shot down every effort to weaken or strengthen the tax approved by the committee on June 9.

The committee's plan is not as tough as the one proposed by President Carter. But today's action represented a major victory for Carter because of the committee's refusal to further weaken — or virtually destroy — the gas-guzzler tax.

Congressional aides estimated that the committee plan, when fully effective in 1985, would save about 185,000 barrels of gasoline daily, almost as much as the 200,000 barrels per day asked by Carter.

As approved by the committee, the gas-guzzler tax would not apply unless the fleet of cars produced each year by individual manufacturers fails by three or four miles per gallon to meet the efficiency standards required under a 1975 law.

Those standards require each company's fleet to average 19 m.p.g. in 1979, rising to 27.5 m.p.g. by 1985.

Council to vote on bond election

In what is expected to be a routine session, the City Council will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight to vote on an ordinance to permit the city to hold a special $25-million industrial revenue bond election for the Kelsey-Hayes Co.

This action could not be taken Monday night because permission for the city to draft the ordinance had to be secured from the state Department of Commerce and Industrial Development. Economic Development Director Jim Hamm secured this approval Thursday in Jefferson City.

The company, which is the largest wheel-manufacturing firm in the country, plans to build a 275,000-square-foot building on a 116-acre tract across from the Duke Manufacturing plant on West Main. When full production is reached in three years, the plant will employ between 200-250 persons to work on four assembly lines.

Computer sale to USSR blocked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union says it only wanted to forecast the weather with a $13 million computer system it was buying from an American company.

But the Carter administration says the Cyber 76 computer is so elaborate the Soviets could have used it for warfare.

After a two-year study, the Commerce Department rejected the proposed sale Thursday, saying the chance of its use in military activity "is of serious concern."

Control Data Corp., the firm applying for an export license for the sale, said the Soviets wanted to use the computer for weather research and forecasting. The computer has a wide variety of scientific uses in the United States, including military research.

There was no reaction to the denial from the Soviet Union, but a spokesman for the computer firm labeled the decision "political rather than being based on sound technical grounds."

Carter quips about choppers

WASHINGTON (AP) — What well-known politician claims he took a $600 income tax exemption for toothpaste?

None other than President Carter, who made his taxes and famous toothy grin the butt of his own jokes Thursday night at a New York fundraising dinner for Democrats.

The question of taxes takes on a more serious tone today, when the White House releases the President's twice-delayed 1976 income tax returns.

Carter received a 60-day extension beyond the April 15 income tax filing deadline earlier this year. When the 60 days expired, he received a second extension from the Internal Revenue Service.

The Carters paid $26,000 in estimated taxes during 1976. One of the questions delaying the filing reportedly dealt with whether royalties from Carter's book, "Why Not the Best?" should be treated as income in 1976 or 1977.

The answer to that question could determine whether the President receives a refund or owes more money.

The black-tie dinner, held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City, raised approximately $1 million in ticket sales for the Democratic party.

Carter, making a rare fundraising appearance, poked fun at himself and his vice president. But he had kind words for Congress, praising "government by partnership," which he said has replaced "government by partisanship."

He joked about the Internal Revenue Service audit of his 1975 income tax return and about his grin, a campaign trademark, joking: "My tax audit is coming out O.K. The only thing they've questioned so far is a $600 bill for toothpaste. But it paid off. I'm President."

The dinner-goers dined on trout and rack of lamb.

High court OK's some parochial aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — States may spend tax dollars to provide parochial school pupils with books and certain educational services but cannot finance field trips or lend parochial schools equipment such as maps and audio-visual aids, the Supreme Court ruled today.

In four separate opinions on a case from Ohio, the court said some forms of state aid to pupils in parochial schools do not violate the Constitution's requirement for separation of church and state.

The decision appeared to be a partial victory for a group of Ohio taxpayers who had challenged the Ohio law as an unconstitutional establishment of religion and a partial victory for state officials who insisted the law was valid.

Legislation passed by the Ohio Legislature in 1975 "lends" up to $88 million worth of materials and services over the next two years to students in private schools, most of them run by religious organizations.

The decision seems to give states a limited way to circumvent the Supreme Court's past decisions outlawing the use of taxpayer dollars for most forms of aid to private schools.

Specifically, the court approved these forms of state aid to parochial students:

—Diagnostic speech and hearing services conducted on parochial school grounds.

—Therapeutic, guidance and remedial services at sites lacking the "pervasively sectarian atmosphere of the church-related schools."

The court would not allow, however, these forms of aid:

—The loan of equipment to students, an action the court said "inescapably had the primary effect of providing a direct and substantial advancement of the sectarian enterprise."

Ohio officials had hoped to get around a previous Supreme Court ruling that banned states from giving educational equipment to parochial schools or their students by "loaning" it. The court said that would not be allowed because the equipment could be used for religious purposes.

—Money or transportation aid for field trips, because the parochial schools and not their students would control the timing and frequency of such trips. This would be, the court said, "an impermissible direct aid to sectarian education."

Listing their separate reasons in 65 pages of opinions, the nine justices split five different ways on the constitutionality of such aid.

A majority of six justices ruled that textbook loans and academic testing are allowed by the Constitution. Justices

William J. Brennan, Thurgood Marshall and John Paul Stevens dissented.

The court voted 8-1, with only Brennan opposed, that aid for diagnostic testing is allowed, and split 7-2, with Brennan and Marshall dissenting, in deciding that aid for therapy off parochial school grounds is permissible.

Another 6-3 split occurred when the justices voted that the lending of equipment such as maps and charts is unconstitutional. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Byron R. White and William H. Rehnquist dissented.

On field trips, Powell joined those three members of the court in dissent. A five-member majority ruled that aid for field trips was unconstitutional also.

Government abandons metric highway signs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with overwhelming public opposition, the government has abandoned its plan to convert the nation's highway signs to the metric system.

"There simply was too much opposition to the proposal from the general public," William M. Cox, director of the Federal Highway Administration, said Friday.

In April, the FHWA invited public comment on the proposed conversion.

"More than 5,000 comments were received, and about 98 per cent of them were negative," Cox said.

"In light of such overwhelming sentiment, the Federal Highway Administration has determined that it would be inappropriate to issue a regulation converting ... to metric standards," he added.

An administration spokesman said the complaints centered on two themes, the projected $100 million conversion cost and resistance to change.

"They argued that the present system has been in use for some time, is well understood and functions well, so why change to satisfy foreign visitors," the spokesman said. "They said it would just cause confusion and dismay among American motorists."

Cox said the FHWA is closing the book on the matter and there are no plans to revive it in the future.

French leader tells Vance about meeting

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance met today with President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing who asked him "to convey some information" to President Carter about the French leader's meeting this week with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Details of today's meeting were not revealed but Vance said he promised to relay the information to the President at breakfast in Washington Saturday morning.

Asked if Giscard d'Estaing could play a role if relations between Moscow and Washington become strained, Vance said the United States and the Soviet Union have "continuous discussions on many subjects ... we welcome the advice and help of others from time to time, but our relationship with the Soviet Union is very satisfactory."

The meeting with Vance, which lasted an hour, was made at the French president's request and dealt only with the Giscard d'Estaing-Brezhnev summit, officials said.

Giscard d'Estaing has said Brezhnev gave him the impression that Soviet-U.S. relations were going through a difficult phase.

In another diplomatic development here, Vance and British Foreign Secretary David Owen agreed Thursday on a joint effort next month to revive negotiations for bringing black majority rule to Rhodesia.

Vance and Owen authorized a British-American consultative group — which is working on procedures for electing a new Rhodesian government and proposals for a new constitution — to return to the area. Heading the group are Stephen Low, U.S. ambassador to Rhodesia's northern neighbor Zambia, and British Undersecretary of State John Graham.

They plan to meet first in Lusaka, the Zambian capital, on July 6 with Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo, guerrilla leaders fighting the white minority regime in Rhodesia.

In the Rhodesian capital of Salisbury, Prime Minister Ian Smith today faced a major white opposition bloc in the legislature for the first time since his Rhodesian Front party came to power in 1963.

Catholic conflict deep-rooted

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A deep-rooted conflict has arisen between the Vatican and Eastern rite Catholics in this country over the ordination of a married man to the priesthood.

The strains go beyond that specific action, however, involving the insistence of Eastern rite churches on their independent jurisdiction over worship forms and rules of ministry.

"The Western Church has failed so far to understand the rights and autonomy of Eastern churches," says the Rev. Joseph Francavilla of the Holy Transfiguration Melkite Church in Vienna, Va. "That's crucial to the whole matter. We've been looked on as stepchildren by Roman bureaucrats. It's caused a very strained relationship."

There are nearly a million Eastern Catholics in this country of various rites, mainly the Ukrainian, Ruthenian and Melkite-Greek rites.

Although their liturgy and disciplines parallel those of Eastern Orthodoxy, numbering six million in this country, the Eastern rite Catholics differ in that they are in union with the Latin rite Church headed by the Roman Pope.

The particular conflict emerged after Melkite rite Patriarch Masimos V. Hakim of Damascus ordained in Montreal, Canada, a Brooklyn, N.Y., married man and father of two children, the Rev. Romanos Russo, 35, to serve in the United States.

The Vatican Congregation for Eastern rite churches denounced the ordination as "illicit."

But Patriarch Hakim, in a strongly worded statement, spurned the criticism, calling it an attempt at "jurisdictional Latinization" and "an affront to the integrity of Catholic Eastern churches."

"The repetitious assertion that the ministry of Eastern married priests is somehow pastorally undesirable in the United States is completely unfounded," the patriarch said, adding that many of them are serving effectively in this country.

It is not "illicit in any way," he said, and for the Vatican office to make such a claim is "totally false, misleading and offensive to church unity."

In most cases of married Eastern rite priests in this country, they were ordained in central Europe or the Middle East before coming here, but Rome is particularly edgy about married Americans being ordained to serve alongside the predominantly Latin rite priests, who must be celibate.

In the Eastern areas, where there are more than 10 million Eastern rite believers in union with Roman Catholicism, married priests are common.

Like Orthodoxy, Eastern Catholics broke from Rome in the 10th and 11th centuries, but gradually reunited with it in the 16th, 17th and 18th centuries, while the bulk of Eastern Orthodox Christians — which also have married priests — remained separate from Rome.

"Rome is paranoid about married clergy," Father Francavilla said in a telephone interview, adding that the particular incident reflected broader issues of rights of Eastern churches to set their own operational rules.

About 50 years ago, in 1929, when Rome suppressed married Eastern rite clergy in this country, it precipitated the exodus of 500,000 members into Orthodoxy. The present dispute had echoes of that situation.

Although the 1962-65 Second Vatican Council specified the freedom of Eastern rite Catholics to preserve their own customs, the Vatican two years ago suspended three U.S. married priests ordained in the Ukrainian rite, but the rite reportedly ignored the suspensions.

Only recently was the U.S. diocese of the Melkite rite established, headed by Archbishop Joseph Tawill of Newton, Mass. It is the first such rite organized in the United States under direct jurisdiction of a patriarch. Patriarchs have authority over church regulations.

But Rome claims this was limited to their old geographic areas in regard to married priests.

On the other hand, Father Francavilla said: "The United States now is in the patriarch's legitimate territory. In the New World, wherever our people are, the Church take care of their needs."

Thinking about it

This far-out solar sail, called a heliogyro because of 12 elongated sails resembling helicopter blades, is under consideration by NASA-JPL scientists for a 1986 Halley's Comet mission. The advance concept has been deemed more feasible than a large square sail which was an alternate proposal. Each sail blade of this spinning heliogyro, which is propelled by the sun's radiation energy, might be more than four miles long to provide maximum power for multi-year flights.

Preus criticized by both sides

NEW YORK (AP) — The key figure in a drawn-out power struggle in the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, its president, the Rev. Dr. J.A.O. Preus, says he's getting walloped from both sides.

On the one hand, he says, the hard-line conservatives are insisting that he's "not tough enough" in enforcing discipline, while the moderates accuse him of over-strict authoritarianism, demanding utter compliance.

"I'm pictured as having horns," he commented in an interview, "disliked and caricatured by the moderates" and not considered sufficiently "hard-nosed" to suit the right-wingers. Neither side "has ever understood me."

"I don't like pushing others around; it's very difficult for me," he went on. "I like persuasion, not giving orders. I've had to take some pretty tough actions, but I don't like to do it."

He said that when he fired four district presidents last year for defying church orders to cease ordaining graduates from a break-away seminary, "I cried with them."

"I had no ax to grind with them personally," he said. "But the policy of brotherly consultation had broken down and I feel I had to do it." He paused. "I'd make a very poor policeman. I'd let all the suspects go."

Yet Dr. Preus, 57, of St. Louis, Mo., a personally easy-mannered amiable man, is at the center of an ecclesiastical storm that has caused about 185 congregations to leave the denomination and thrown many others into uncertainty and turmoil.

"The great Lutheran civil war," it is termed by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch religion editor, James E. Adams, in a new book issued by Harper & Row, "Preus of Missouri."

His spearheading of a drive to insure "pure doctrine" and a uniform, literalistic approach to the Bible could bring either "church-building" or "churchwrecking," Adams writes in his vivid, even-handed account, the realization of "a dream" or "a nightmare."

"We're striving very diligently to see to it that our public teaching is in keeping with positions set forth in the Lutheran Confessions," Dr. Preus said. To claims of so-called "moderates" that majority-adopted criteria goes beyond Lutheran traditions in imposing fixed understandings of the Bible, he said: "We don't think so. We don't think it changed anything or nailed anybody down more than before."

Amid the strains in the 2.8-million-member denomination, Dr. Preus faces challenges at its July 15-22 convention in Dallas, Texas, for the presidency, both from the left and right.

Church contract awarded

East Sedalia Baptist Church, 1019 East Fifth, voted Wednesday night to award a $587,145 contract to Borchers and Heimsoth Construction Co. of Cole Camp, low bidder on the project, for construction of a new sanctuary and office complex.

The new building, which will be added to the west side of the existing church, will be octagonal in shape. A ground-level structure, it will feature ramps to all outside doors, and will seat more than 500 worshippers.

Work on the new structure is expected to begin within 30 days, with completion scheduled for one year later.

Nearly one-half of the building funds are on hand now, with the rest to be raised through love offerings and gifts, according to a spokesman for the church.

The entire structure will be carpeted and will feature 11 stained-glass windows, full insulation, zone heating and air-conditioning and fluorescent lighting to conserve energy. Additional parking facilities will be constructed on the north side of the new building.

The existing structure will not be torn down, the spokesman said, adding that its future use has not been determined.

The church has been located at its present site for more than 100 years.

Retired archbishop blasts teachings

WHEATON, Ill. (AP) — Teaching of philosophy nowadays has been reduced to its history, rather than its substance, says retired Catholic Archbishop Fulton Sheen, long a prominent church writer and preacher.

"If we taught architecture today the way we teach philosophy, no one would ever be able to construct a building," he said in an interview with the evangelical fortnightly, Christianity Today.

National office is opened by WOC

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Women's Ordination Conference has opened a national office in an ecumenically owned building here, La Casa, to carry on its efforts for admission of women to the Roman Catholic priesthood.

At a liturgy marking the event, Barbara Nash, a suburban wife and mother among lay women and nuns present who seek the priesthood, led prayers for the day when they would have that opportunity.

When Malta was part of the Roman Empire, it was known as Melita.

Warning may be required on farm devices that cost jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government may try to work out a system requiring federally subsidized researchers at universities to give advance notice of the development of new farm machines which might cost agricultural workers their jobs.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall says he is inclined to favor such a requirement. He said he intends to check into it with Agriculture Department officials.

The subject came up Thursday at a meeting of Rural America, Inc., a non-profit lobbying organization. A questioner from California asked whether the Labor Department could do something about the sudden introduction of harvesting and other machines developed by land grant schools which displace farm workers.

"Since these universities are heavily funded by the Department of Agriculture, we ought to be able to work with them in trying to prevent just that thing," Marshall said.

"You've put your hand on the history of rural America, that most of our policies through time have displaced people from farming with no thought of the consequences," he said.

Marshall indicated he would have a check made with USDA to see "if we can't work out a program to require early warning on the introduction of those things that are subsidized at government expense."

The California legislature recently killed a proposal to tax mechanical harvesters and machine-picked crops. The plan called for the tax money to be used for paying extended unemployment benefits to workers displaced by machines.

Marshall said that farm workers are not alone in feeling the impact of mechanization or other forms of competition. Sudden increases in imports can affect industrial workers the same way, he said.

Hog inventory

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. inventory of hogs and pigs on June 1 was 54.1 million head, about the same as it was a year ago, according to the Agriculture Department.

But surveys indicate that farmers intend to step up production through Nov. 30, the end of the 1976-77 marketing year.

Officials said that the survey showed farmers will have 6.1 million sows give birth during the last half of this year. They could produce 44.4 million pigs, the largest June-November pig crop since 1971 and five per cent larger than last season.

In the first six months of the marketing year, which began

Dec. 1, the pig crop was 43.1 million head, up two per cent from the first half of 1975-76.

Report due

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is planning to release a report next week showing how many acres of major crops such as wheat, corn, soybeans and cotton farmers will have for harvest this year.

No production estimates will be included, but the report, expected June 30, will provide a firmer idea of 1977 crop plantings and how much of those USDA experts think will be harvested.

The department's first estimate of 1977 corn output will not be ready until July 12. Soybeans, cotton and other crops will be estimated in August, along with updated figures for corn and previously forecasted crops, including wheat.

Skateboards taking toll

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The skateboarding fad has made some people a lot of money, but those getting the biggest break may be doctors.

Dr. Kip Parsons, an orthopedist at Childrens Mercy Hospital, says between 30 and 40 young skateboarders have been treated for broken bones at the hospital this summer. Last year, there were six.

"Statistically that's a significant number when taking other forms of childhood play into consideration," Parsons said.

The doctor said the accidents have been divided equally between boys and girls, adding that the most common type of break is the wrist or forearm.

"Skateboards have taken their fair toll so far this summer," he said.

The worst may yet be to come, however.

Thousands of Kansas City students are still in school because of spring teachers' strike. They will be out of the classrooms — and on the sidewalks — next month.

Former governor OK after surgery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown is reported doing "extremely well" after prostate surgery at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center.

A hospital spokesman said Brown, father of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., probably will return home Sunday.

Judges urging Gov. Teasdale to sign bill

The three judges of the Pettis County Court said Friday morning that they would send a letter to Gov. Joseph Teasdale urging him to sign Senate Bill 277, which provides reimbursement to Missouri counties for assessment costs.

The court received a letter from Tony Heisberger, executive director of the Missouri Association of Counties, Friday indicating his concern that the governor might not sign the measure, recently passed by the legislature.

The measure would provide 50 per cent reimbursement for the costs of county assessments in the future. Presiding Judge John Blumh Jr. said the bill is the result of each county assessor's work in providing the state with its property assessments.

Heisberger urged officials in all counties to write Teasdale and urge immediate signing of the bill. "It would appear some are encouraging the governor and his staff to look very carefully at SB277," Heisberger said in his letter.

Pettis County budgeted $43,000 for assessment costs in 1976, Heisberger said, and stands to lose $21,500 in reimbursement funds for that year if the measure is vetoed by Teasdale.

To return man to Sedalia on charges

Pettis County sheriff's deputies were enroute to Leavenworth, Kan., Friday morning to return Michael J. Rhodes to Sedalia to face felony stealing charges filed against him Thursday.

According to Sheriff Emmett Fairfax, Rhodes was arrested by Leavenworth authorities after attempting to sell some furniture allegedly stolen June 20 from the K-Mart store here.

Rhodes was expected to be arraigned Friday afternoon on the charge. He waived extradition to Missouri to face the charge, Fairfax said.

Castro says climate ripe for improvement

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Fidel Castro says normal relations between Cuba and the United States may be possible again because President Carter has "the first administration in 18 years that is not committed to a policy of aggression and hostility toward Cuba."

The Cuban president told about 70

American businessmen at a reception Thursday night that the climate is favorable for resolving long-standing differences between the United States and Cuba.

Castro said the differences with the United States that developed after he came to power "are old problems" now.

"The world changes and the United States has to become used to these changes," he said.

The businessmen, most of them from the Chicago area, were concluding four days of trade talks. They return home Saturday.

Castro admitted to American reporters accompanying the businessmen that the U.S. government's 16-year-old embargo on American trade with Cuba has caused serious problems for the Cuban economy. He said the trade ban "is losing prestige; it is losing logic." But he warned that even "if the embargo lasts another 50 years, it will not bring down my government. We will be able to continue living and continue growing."

Most of the businessmen joined Castro in expressing hope that the embargo would end soon.

The Chicago delegation found Cuban officials more receptive toward future U.S. investments in Cuba than a delegation of Minnesota businessmen who were here in April.

The Minnesotans were told the Cubans did not want U.S. investments. But Foreign Trade Minister Marcelo Fernandez told the Chicago group: "We don't have a closed attitude in this respect. Whatever is good for our country, we will consider."

Chamber says past session was successful

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Chamber of Commerce has declared the recent session of the Missouri Legislature a success for business as "virtually all legislation detrimental to the business community was defeated."

In its weekly legislative bulletin to members, the chamber said the recent session saw the success of business lobbyists in securing passage of favorable legislation or defeat of unfavorable bills in both houses whereas in past sessions business allies could normally be found in only one house.

"It is becoming more and more clear that the voice of Missouri business is being heard equally in both chambers," the newsletter said.

Among the successes cited by the chamber was defeat of Gov. Joseph Teasdale's corporate tax revision proposals that he said would have made business pay its fair share of state taxes.

The chamber also cited easy passage of a sales tax break for businesses through exemption of steel platforms used to support pollution control equipment. But the newsletter added that the tax benefit did not clear the legislature without lobbyists mounting a campaign to delete an "antibusiness" provision tacked onto the bill.

That proposal would have required companies receiving sales tax exemptions on goods for materials to make annual reports to the state on the amount of money they saved because of the tax break. Backers of the disclosure claimed the state had a right to know how much money it loses because of the exemptions.

Rural Sedalia man is jailed following raid

Nicholas Timothy Domingue, 23, Route 2, remained in the county jail at noon pending the filing of formal marijuana possession charges and his arraignment in Magistrate Court.

The sheriff's department, assisted by Sedalia police and the Highway Patrol, searched Domingue's home about 12:30 a.m. Friday on a search warrant obtained on information supplied by informants, Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said.

Ron Hoskins and William McGhee, narcotics officers for the police department, received information from an informant and the search warrant was issued, Fairfax said.

Three pounds of marijuana, 10 rifles and shotguns and four saddles were confiscated in the search, Fairfax said. Serial numbers on two of the guns were traced to a Saline County theft and the four saddles were stolen from the Walter Lacey residence, Route 1, Smithton, on May 12, Fairfax said.

Domingue was free on $5,000 bond at the time of his arrest Friday morning in connection with felony marijuana sale charges. He was one of 23 persons arrested in drug raids Feb. 25, following his alleged sale of $75 worth of marijuana to McGhee on Feb. 15.

Ozark grant is approved for college

State Fair Community College has received approval of a $100,000 grant from the Ozarks Regional Commission and is awaiting word on the approval of a $385,000 grant through the Economic Development Act (EDA), reported Fred Davis, SFCC president.

The grants will be used to reinstate a list of proposed deletions to the new vocational-technical building to be constructed at the college. Deletions became necessary when the lowest bid received exceeded the estimated $1.3 million budget by approximately $268,000.

The $100,000 grant must be processed through the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and then through the state Department of Education. Once there, the department can authorize expenditure of the money, Davis said.

"We can put $100,000 back into the $268,000 we cut out," said Davis, referring to the deletion figure the Board of Trustees arrived at during their last monthly meeting. "Unless we get the EDA grant, however, the remaining $168,000 will have to stay out" of the building plans, he added.

SFCC applied for $1,800,000 in the first round of the EDA grants in November, 1976, but the application was held over because of lack of funds. Consequently, in the second round, the college only will be in line for $385,000.

Word on approval of the EDA grant is expected within 90 days, Davis said.

Four-count petition requests damages totalling $46,000

A four-count damage suit seeking a total judgment of $46,000 was filed in Circuit Court Friday by Jackie L. Dillon and his wife, Janice, and their children, Paul Nease and Jackie Lee Dillon.

Gregory Wayne Bredehoeft, Sweet Springs, and Larry Nease, Marshall, were named defendants in the suit.

According to the petition, the Dillon family was driving on Route OO near Houstonia on June 6, 1976, when the car collided with one driven by Bredehoeft. Careless action by Bredehoeft caused the accident, according to the petition.

Jackie L. Dillon seeks $15,000 in damages for injuries to himself, his wife and their son, Jackie Lee Dillon, in Count I.

Janice Dillon seeks $15,000 in damages for injuries to herself and Paul Nease, her natural son, in Count II.

Jackie Lee Dillon, through his mother, seeks $13,000 for his injuries in Count III.

In Count IV, Mrs. Dillon seeks $3,000 from Larry Nease, her former husband, because of his failure or refusal to join in the Dillon's suit against Bredehoeft for injuries to his son, Paul Nease.

City Democrats to form a new group

Officers will be elected and a name chosen for a new organization of Democrats in the city at 7:30 a.m. Saturday at the Ramada Inn at a fund-raising breakfast.

Fourth Ward City Councilman Ray Hendricks said the new group will be designed to attract "persons who haven't been that involved in politics in the past, but who would like to get involved."

The new Democratic club will also work to raise money for the city and county Democratic committees, Hendricks said. The group will not, he emphasized, financially support a specific candidate, but will give funds to the two committees to use for campaign expenses.

Agency denies making request of CIA on Chile

WASHINGTON (AP) — Informed sources say the National Security Council has asked the CIA to prepare a study on possible "alternatives" to Chile's anti-Communist military regime, but the NSC categorically denies making the request.

Jerrold Schechter, spokesman for the NSC, today said, "There's absolutely no question about this. The National Security Council has not asked the CIA to prepare any studies on Chile."

The Carter administration has frequently tried to disassociate itself from the Chilean junta because of its human rights record. But the sources said the NSC-ordered study adds a new dimension to the administration's anti-junta posture.

They said the decision to request the study reflects the influence of several of the young, liberal Carter administration recruits who have risen to senior policy-making positions.

"They have the knife out for the junta," said one administration insider.

Among them is the NSC Latin American staff adviser, Robert Pastor, who is said to have requested the CIA study. Pastor could not be reached for comment Thursday night. It was not clear whether the request for the study was approved by Pastor's boss, Zbigniew Brzezinski.

The sources were uncertain for what purpose the study was ordered. One informant just smiled when asked whether he thought the objective was a covert operation against the junta.

He noted that the study involves a rightist regime in Chile which four years ago ousted a government which the Nixon administration tried to subvert because of its leftist policies.

Chile has come under fire for alleged human rights violations but the departing U.S. ambassador to Chile, David Popper, said in an interview that the number of persons subjected to improper treatment is down sharply. Popper left Santiago last month.

Ichord stands firm in taxation dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Missouri congressman says his Maryland home has been burglarized three times, the state government is "corrupt to the core" and he'll go to the highest court to keep from paying any income taxes there.

Even if living in Maryland was all it should be, Rep. Richard Ichord says he won't fork over state income tax money because he earns his $57,500 salary in the District of Columbia, not Maryland.

But state tax collectors are threatening court action unless Ichord agrees to pay up.

In an exchange of written barbs with the Maryland comptroller's office, Ichord has acknowledged that he has not filed tax return statements to Annapolis for the years 1972 through 1975.

"I have not earned one dime in Maryland," he blustered. "And as a matter of principle, I will not pay one dime of taxes in Maryland until the highest court decides that I must pay such taxes if any are owing in excess of my Missouri income taxes."

Asked by a reporter how much he owes the state of Maryland, the Missouri Democrat growled: "That is none of your business. You don't have a right to ask."

But he did say he pays "considerable income tax" to Missouri. He declined to give an exact figure.

Ichord, a former business law and accounting professor at the University of Missouri, says he pays real estate tax on the house he has owned for 10 years in Prince Georges County, Md.

But he complained to Maryland officials that his real estate taxes are "approximately three times as high as Missouri," and that he gets very little governmental services in return.

To wit, Ichord noted, his house has been burglarized three times.

Ichord's congressional colleagues from Maryland don't see why Ichord doesn't pay up and they have been known to suggest it. But Ichord snapped at one such Maryland congressman:

"I found out that ... Maryland government is corrupt to the core and that many businessmen not only have to have one black bag, but have to carry actually as many as two black bags in order to do business."

"Witness the past conduct of your former Gov. (Spiro T.) Agnew and the present trial of your present Gov. (Marvin) Mandel. I have never known such corruption to exist in any state in the union. I am sure it still exists."

Agnew resigned as vice president after pleading no contest to income tax charges. Mandel is being tried on corruption charges.

Ichord's argument with Maryland could be shelved by legislation expected to go to the White House soon. It would exempt House and Senate members from paying income taxes in Maryland or Virginia.

They would still have to pay income taxes in their home states.

George F. Smith of Maryland's comptroller's office says he is sticking to current law. That means, he says, members of Congress who live in Maryland for more than six months of the taxable year must be treated as any other individual taxpayer.

But, counters Ichord: "I do not sleep in Maryland more than six months out of the year."

Wet ending

Three young girls ponder a car which ended up in a motel swimming pool in Salina, Kan. Witnesses said the car jumped a curb, skidded across the motel parking lot, crashed through a brick wall and chain link fence, crushed a picnic table, ripped out a diving board and then sank. Police charged a 20-year-old man with driving while intoxicated. He and three passengers walked away unhurt.

MU researchers study prairie dogs

By JOHN SAYLER
Lyons Daily News

LYONS, Kan. (AP) — There is a Green Center in middle Kansas. Just north is the settlement of Giant White, and just east of Giant White is Flat White.

But the only map on which they appear is one drawn by Dr. Zuleyma Halpin, assistant professor of biology at the University of Missouri-St. Louis and two graduate assistants. Green Center, Giant White and Flat White are the mounds in a town of prairie dogs.

Dr. Halpin, Doug Dalrymple and Steve Wilkinson came to the plains of central Kansas to start a study of the prairie dogs that inhabit a small town within the federal government's Quivira Wildlife Refuge.

Dr. Halpin, who is 32, hopes it will continue four or five years.

She and her students also hope a study of the social behavior of prairie dogs may lead to better managing of all wildlife so it can survive and cohabitate with man.

"Prairie dogs are the most social rodents, and they are among the most social of all mammals," Dr. Halpin explains.

Prairie dogs and bison once dominated the plains. Prairie dog towns covered square miles instead of square feet or acres, particularly in Kansas. A Kansan on Dr. Halpin's staff recommended the remote Quivira refuge, where wind-swept grasslands are rimmed by towering cottonwoods.

"This whole refuge, it's gorgeous," Dr. Halpin says. "It's a fantastic wildlife area that not many of us know about. I don't think people out here realize what they have."

The refuge is named for the Quivira Indians encountered by Coronado when the Spanish explorer was searching for the Seven Cities of Cibola in 1541.

The researchers started their study by trapping prairie dogs, tagging them, and recording their patterns of behavior.

Sunflower seeds and lettuce lure the rodents into a kind of sock, with a hole for their head. One team member holds the dog, another fastens a tag to one ear. Weight and sex are determined and recorded, and the dog is released.

Many return to feast again and again on the bait, willing to sacrifice a few minutes of entrapment for the goodies.

The researchers must wear gloves. Dr. Halpin once neglected this detail as she patted a cage to encourage a prairie dog to run into the sock. It bit her finger, and she had to go to a doctor.

The researchers have been able to determine which prairie dog families live in which holes. Each family complex is called a coterie. The boundaries are invisible to humans, maybe even to the prairie dogs. Still, there is some sense which tells residents of the town where they are. When property lines are crossed, fights start immediately.

The team members recognize and have names for some of the prairie dogs. Dr. Halpin contends some have discernible personalities.

"They're like little people running around out there," she says.

The graduate students will remain during the summer. Dr. Halpin has gone to other chores but expects to return in October to observe and record the evolution of prairie dog living.

But then she may have begun to learn why some prairie dogs decide to leave a town and where they go. She may be returning next summer with other students to deepen the study into how the prairie dog survives and why he may not.

Agnew still owes $13,966, IRS says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spiro T. Agnew, who resigned as vice president in 1973 because of income tax evasion, failed to report almost $27,000 in income when he filed his federal tax return the next year, the Internal Revenue Service says.

The IRS says Agnew owes $13,966 in back taxes and penalties on the unreported 1973 income. But Agnew's lawyer says his client is being "harassed" on at least one of the items being questioned.

Agnew, who resigned as vice president of the United States and then pleaded no contest to a felony charge of tax evasion on Oct. 10, 1973, was notified of the new IRS case on April 15, the day the three-year statute of limitations ran out.

Agnew's lawyer, Myron J. Mintz, filed a petition Thursday in U.S. Tax Court disputing the IRS contentions.

The IRS says Agnew should have reported as income $11,370 for home improvements by the General Services Administration; $4,398 for personal use of government aircraft; $5,554 in personal and family expenses and $924 in food delivered by a grocery chain executive.

In addition, the IRS disallowed an exemption Agnew claimed for supporting an aunt as well as $3,600 in home office expenses and business entertainment deductions.

The IRS is seeking a 5 percent "negligence" penalty plus back taxes on the alleged unreported income. The case does not involve new criminal charges.

In the petition filed for Agnew, Mintz said the improvements were made on Agnew's Kenwood, Md., home for security reasons and "for the convenience of the U.S. government." They included a brick wall, a remodeled staircase and plumbing.

The petition contended Agnew used the government aircraft to carry out his official duties as vice president and accepted the food delivered by Joseph Rash, a vice president of Food Fair Stores, Inc., as "a gift made from detached and disinterested generosity."

Blumenthal, wife splitting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and his wife, Eileen, are separating after 26 years of marriage.

A Treasury spokesman said Thursday that the Blumenthals' decision "was reached by mutual consent and after long and searching thought."

The Blumenthals have three grown daughters.

National Cancer Institute to conduct Laetrile tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Cancer Institute, bowing to public pressure, will test the controversial substance Laetrile on cancer patients who have exhausted all other hope.

Dr. Guy R. Newell, the acting director of the cancer institute, said Thursday the fact that the experiments will be conducted does not "change our opinion that Laetrile is not effective" in the treatment of cancer.

Proponents say Laetrile is a cancer remedy. Its opponents say it has no medicinal value.

"We have reconsidered our position because of a lot of factors, and one of them is societal pressures," Newell told a House government operations subcommittee conducting hearings into the government's war against cancer.

Newell also said the tests are being undertaken because of the number of states that have legalized Laetrile or are considering it, in spite of the federal attitude toward the substance.

Laetrile, a derivative of apricot pits, has been legalized in 11 states but the Food and Drug Administration bans it for interstate sales on the grounds that it is useless in cancer treatment.

Newell said the Laetrile will be administered in cases where patients had been given all the best known medical treatment to no avail.

Dr. Saul Shephard, a cancer institute scientist, said the tests would be conducted on "a couple of hundred" terminally ill cancer patients and that the program should begin in about three months.

The institute said results of the test would be known in about a year.

Newell said patients involved in the test will be given Laetrile in conjunction with other medication and that no patients will receive only Laetrile.

Newell said one group will receive Laetrile along with the standard treatment and the other group of patients will be given the standard treatment and dummy pills or injections that they would think was Laetrile.

Senators authorized to purchase copiers

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Each member of the Missouri Senate has been authorized to purchase a telecopier machine under a plan that could cost the state more than $50,000.

But Ron Kirchoff, the Senate administrator, said only three senators asked for the machines used to transit written information by telephone. The machines cost about $1,500 each.

Authority for the senators to purchase a telecopier if they wanted was given by the Senate Accounts Committee in the final days of the recent legislative session.

Sen. Paul Bradshaw, R-Springfield, had initially asked the panel, which controls Senate expenditures, for authority to purchase a telecopier for himself. The committee gave its approval and extended the option to the other 33 Senate members.

According to Kirchoff, Republican Sens. Joe Frapier of St. Charles and George Murray of Creve Coeur are the other two lawmakers asking for the machines. Kirchoff said a fourth machine has also been ordered for the Senate's central administration.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Quitting milk digestion cure

Dear Dr. Lamb — How can I ever thank you. For more than ten years I have had real problems with my digestion, then one of your columns about milk gave me a new life.

For years I was troubled with severe bloating, cramping in my stomach and often diarrhea. The doctors tested me for everything. None of my X rays showed a thing and I was finally diagnosed as having an irritable bowel and told it was my nerves.

When you wrote about the trouble that milk could cause it sounded exactly like the problem I had been having all of these years. So I quit drinking milk entirely and stopped using it in any cooking. In a week my problem was over. All that gas and distention stopped and my sore aching stomach muscles stopped hurting.

I can eat anything as long as I avoid milk. Just how common is this? I had heard about children, particularly little babies having trouble with milk but I didn't know it could affect an adult.

Dear Reader — Yours is a familiar story to me. Studies suggest that more than 50 million Americans cannot tolerate milk. Nearly two-thirds of these people begin to have symptoms after drinking as little as one glass of milk.

The problem is most common in adults, not children. Infants may not tolerate milk because of an allergy. The milk protein may be absorbed undigested into the blood stream through the incompletely matured intestinal wall. This is a different problem.

In adults with milk intolerance the usual cause is a loss of lactase enzyme. This enzyme is in the cells of the lining of the small intestine. It splits the double sugar in milk, lactose, into single sugars. Unless the double milk sugar is split it cannot be absorbed.

It then pulls fluids into the small intestine and sets off the chain of events that causes diarrhea, gas, abdominal cramps and all the unpleasant symptoms you have experienced.

This condition is particularly common in adult Blacks and other non-Anglo-Saxons. The enzyme to split milk sugar begins to disappear from the intestine in early life and is most severe in young adults and thereafter. A comparable change occurs in sucking animals. After the weaning stage the lactase enzyme begins to disappear.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-2, Milk Products: Good and Bad, so you can learn more about this. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

There is an enzyme powder called Lact-Aid that can be used to split the milk sugar before you drink the milk. It will help many people with this problem. It is marketed by SugarLo company, and is a fairly new product.

Commercial buttermilk and yogurt cannot be used either by people with lactose intolerance. Commercial yogurt often has had dry milk powder added as a thickener and it actually contains more lactose than milk.

Some people develop a temporary lactose intolerance because of infectious diarrhea from food poisoning or from antibiotics that kill off the normal intestinal bacteria, but the majority of individuals with lactose intolerance have it as an inherited characteristic. (NEA)

Kenton's orchestra rocks Springfield campus

By WES COOK
Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — POW...POW...POW! The music exclaims and then, it sweeps and surges, shattering the seemingly pastoral campus like a summer thunderstorm.

The Stan Kenton orchestra is in residence for its seventh annual week-long jazz clinic on the campus of Drury College in Springfield.

Someone is missing, however. Where's Kenton, that tall but slightly stooped figure, a result at the age of 65 of years of hunching over the piano keyboard, his long arms thrashing the air as he coaxes, disciplines and edits the performance of his 18 young musicians?

Kenton is more than 1,000 miles away, recuperating in the Reading, Pa., Hospital and Medical Center. He received a skull fracture May 22, possibly in a fall after suffering some type of seizure. He underwent successful surgery two days later. The hospital says he is showing steady improvement daily.

The band remains on the road under the direction of trombonist Dick Shearer, a close personal friend and confidant, whom Kenton regards almost as a son. Shearer has been with Kenton since 1965 and has been the featured trombone soloist and assistant musical director for more than seven years.

While Kenton is not on campus, his music, interest and contagious enthusiasm for jazz is present everywhere. Nearly 300 high school and college students and about 30 music educators, study, discuss, rehearse and perform from early morning until late at night.

Dr. Herb Patnoe of De Anza College (Calif.), director of the Kenton summer clinics, said the students and educators represent 30 states, ranging from Florida to Connecticut on the east to Arizona on the west.

The clinic faculty includes the Kenton musicians, plus 18 college jazz educators. They provide individual and group instruction on concepts of jazz, such as rhythm, phrasing, interpretation, articulation, improvisation, rehearsal techniques, harmony, theory, composition and orchestration.

"Stan believes the kids should be exposed to the entire field of jazz and not just his music," Patnoe said. "He insists that they have the opportunity to play any charts (arrangements) the instructors feel are of interest and can help in the students' growth. He believes in education and all music is a part of that education."

Kenton pioneered the jazz clinics on college campuses, beginning in 1958. For several years now, he also has taken the band into high schools for one-day clinics and concerts. He has averaged more than 100 of these each year since 1970.

Dr. Patnoe has been associated with the Kenton clinics for almost 10 years. "I have seen just fantastic musical growth in that time.

The students are capable of doing anything they hear.

"Before the clinics began to develop," Patnoe said, "mediocrity was encouraged. The arrangements available to the music educators and students were severely restricted in terms of the level of technical difficulty, range, tempo and certain types of passages."

Paul Tanner, who played trombone with Glenn Miller before W.W. II, is a teacher now at UCLA. Patnoe said Tanner "is in awe of the kids. He says that music they regarded as difficult for jazz professionals in the late 30s and early 40s today is only junior high school level.

"It took a professional like Stan to say, 'the kids can play this. You've got to constantly set new standards for them and provide examples of accomplishment that they can relate to.' That's why Stan takes the band to the high schools, he said 'the kids can look up there and see my guys performing and they are not much older than the students.

So the students say to themselves, 'If he can do that, I can do it too. It lifts the whole level of learning by demonstration.'"

Kenton has said, "I used to have a lot of guilts about getting a lot of kids around us, playing better, becoming better musicians. Where in the hell are they going to play. There aren't that many jobs around."

But, he observed, "since that time I've tempered my feelings a great deal. They don't have to play music for a living. A music education, especially jazz music, contributes to the development and maturity of the human mind. Jazz is better in that sense because it makes a demand upon the creative resources.

"If they learn to use those creative resources in music, they will also learn to apply that same creative process in any other business or profession. God knows, we need creative people everywhere today."

The Kenton orchestra moves into the final number of the night. Trumpets pierce the ear like lightning shredding the storm cloud, trombones rumble like distant thunder, and the saxophones race against that background like rain on the roof.

Toothy escapee

Looking like part of the cast for a new Godzilla movie, Sea World of Ohio's "Ugly," who is 10 feet long and weighs 250 pounds, is an escapee. The Florida alligator was one of three alligators that escaped from Sea World and returned to their summer quarters in Aurora, Ohio.

(UPI)

House aspirant a calloused man

ROME, Kan. (AP) — The success of Jimmy Carter in his long campaign for the presidency has provided impetus to a Kansas optometrist with the far-sighted vision of a seat in Congress.

And Dr. Robert Whittaker has borrowed from another Democrat, Iowa Rep. Tom Harkin, for the basis of his campaign — building homes, pumping gas and shoveling grain to meet the voters.

"Everything I've ever read has pointed to starting early," said the 37-year-old Whittaker, who launched his campaign in May, 15 months before next year's Republican primary. "I think the fact that President Carter was successful in his longterm effort is an indication it is effective."

Whittaker thought about traversing the vast 5th District in southeast Kansas to shake hands and say, "Hi, I'm Bob Whittaker and I want to be your congressman" — a la Carter. Instead, he decided to leave his Augusta practice two days a month and work at different jobs.

Harkin undertook similar job days when he unseated incumbent Bill Scherle in Iowa in 1974.

"It portrays a message," Whittaker said recently, pausing outside the Rome grain elevator where he was helping store part of the big Kansas wheat harvest. "It shows that I'm willing to get out and get a few blisters on my hands, a few back aches, a few skinned knuckles, just to find out what the problems are, because these are the people I'm seeking to represent."

After announcing for the seat being vacated by the retirement of fellow Republican Joe Skubitz, Whittaker first spent a day in an Augusta farm implement store.

He worked at a housing construction project in Emporia and a service station in Independence before coming here to lend a hand to elevator workers in shoveling the wheat from farmers' trucks and cleaning out railroad storage cars.

"The idea appealed to me for a couple reasons," he said. "It is a good opportunity to meet people. And I get the experience and knowledge of different aspects, different industries that affect the district's economy."

It also brings Whittaker exposure, something he needs since his only experience in public office has been two terms in the Kansas legislature.

But Whittaker denies the work days are a publicity stunt and that the campaign was started too early.

"You hear this mentioned mostly by other possible contenders who may not be aware of all that needs to be done or just chooses to wait for a later announcement," he said.

Whittaker contends his style of campaigning — "getting out and meeting people and knocking on their doors" — requires an early start in a district encompassing about 20,000 square miles in 24½ counties.

"If I had a lot of money, possibly I could wait for a later time and try doing it by a blitz of some sort," he said. "But my style has been to get out and meet the people where they work and reside."

"I personally don't have too much regard for the person that seeks office that does so from his air-conditioned office. I think if a person's asking to represent people, then he owes it to them to go out and meet them."

Whittaker said he decided to run for Congress 4 1-2 years ago but held off until Skubitz retired because he doubted he could unseat him.

He spent a lot of time meeting people and studying politics. He stayed politically active as a state representative and coordinator of Sen. Bob Dole's 1974 campaign in southeast Kansas.

The optometrist said he expects to spend about $100,000 in his 18-month campaign and claims his volunteer staff already numbers more than 300.

But Whittaker will count most on meeting people in the coming weeks, planning such roles as reporter, farmer and banker in small towns in the district.

As one who dubs himself the "I Hear You Candidate," he listens to the complaints of those he works for and to the people he meets.

"I don't make a point to campaign," he contends. "Like if someone comes in I don't hand them a brochure. Now if they mention it or they ask me a question, I'll answer it."

When he peered into a car window to introduce himself while working in the gas station, the driver replied, "This is really something. This is my first experience with a congressman." It was a case of mistaken identity Whittaker hopes to correct.

Two killed, eight hurt in accident

GERALD, Mo. (AP) — Two persons were killed and eight others were injured Thursday in the head-on collision of two cars on U.S. 50 near here in Franklin County, the Missouri Highway Patrol said.

Both drivers were killed in the accident, they said.

The victims were identified as Lloyd Davis, 63, Ellisville, and Terri Schulte, 23, Gerald.

Authorities said Davis was eastbound on U.S. 50 when his car collided with the Schulte car head-on. Police said the accident occurred on a curve during a rainstorm.

The two drivers were pronounced dead at St. Francis Mercy Hospital in Washington.

Companies, city may be cited

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — At least four Missouri industries and possibly one municipality could be subjected to enforcement action next month for excessive water pollution.

State environmental quality officials declined to identify the five. But they said the action will result from their failure to meet the federal government's July 1 deadline for cleaning up waterways.

"We know the ones that will not meet the date and we're working with them now, but there are some in the state that are really not trying to do all they can to meet the date," said James Odendahl, director of the state Clean Water Commission.

Robert Hentges said the commission staff "will probably initiate some kind of action at the next commission meeting in July. We have had three years for conferences, conciliation and persuasion."

Enforcement action could range from imposition of specific clean-up schedules to lawsuits seeking fines up to $10,000 for each day pollution standards are not met.

The 1972 federal water pollution control law set July 1 for industry to apply the "best practicable" methods of reducing waste discharges into waterways and for municipalities to use secondary facilities to filter and disinfect sewage. Only one Missouri firm has been subjected to fines for violations since 1972.

Hentges said the four industrial firms and the municipality are among 300 companies and more than 100 cities nationwide that the federal Environmental Protection Agency has targeted for possible penalty action over failure to meet the deadline. Should the state fail to act against the firms, the EPA could.

Of 59 major industrial water polluters in the state, Hentges said only 17 will not meet the deadline. But he said 13 of those are either actively building pollution control facilities or are experiencing other mitigating circumstances "and we're definitely not going to take any action against them."

Concerning municipalities, Odendahl said "a great number of people are not going to meet the deadline." But nearly all of those towns have had problems obtaining financing, primarily from the federal government, for treatment plant construction, he said.

The Clean Water Commission is expected to take action this month to assist those industries and communities it does not intend to act against.

N L Industries of St. Louis, which produces a dye pigment, has been the only Missouri firm subjected to monetary fines for violating pollution control standards so far, Hentges said.

Under a settlement awaiting federal court approval, the firm has agreed to pay $125,000 in civil penalties for past violations and $1,000 a day beginning July 1 until it meets pollution control standards.

Injustice order of the day in House

WASHINGTON — We are seeing what I pray is the final stage of a swing to narrow-mindedness, racism, just plain meanness in this society.

Rowan

The House of Representatives passes an anti-abortion amendment which even House majority leader Jim Wright of Texas calls "an abomination."

Whereas a generation ago Orval Faubus of Arkansas and George Wallace of Alabama became national villains because of their opposition to school desegregation efforts, a majority of the House happily and heroically seeks to forbid the use of federal funds to bus pupils even when the courts declare it necessary to combat Jim Crow; the House wants to prevent the withholding of federal funds from districts that defy court orders where any busing beyond the nearest school is required; these House members want to freeze into perpetuity the racial injustices of three centuries' standing by wiping out affirmative action programs.

The House of Representatives has become the perpetrator of a more effective web of social and racial injustices than Faubus, Wallace, the Mississippi state legislature or any old-style advocates of racism ever dreamed they could spin.

Part of this ugly trend is due to political cowardice. The House is composed of 435 people who are constantly running for re-election, so it is not surprising that there is often a majority willing to cave in to the passions of the hour.

A "right to life" crowd that is intent on forcing its notion of religiosity or morality upon the rest of the society knows that the key is to focus on the House. Spineless legislators will cave in to the noisiest fanatics who seem to pose the greatest threat of defeat in the next election.

And caving in becomes easier when it does not mean taking the possibility of a safe abortion away from affluent Americans of political clout. No, the Hyde amendment to the labor and health, education and welfare appropriation bill would effectively deny abortions to only the poorest, least-educated women in the land — the women who least need more babies, who do not want them, and who cannot properly care for them.

The cruelest aspect of this anti-abortion craze was cited by Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall Monday in dissenting from a 6 to 3 high court decision permitting curbs on the use of Medicaid money for abortions. Marshall said the ruling will "brutally coerce" poor women "to bear children whom society will scorn for every day of their lives."

We have here a simple formula for speeding the decay, the destruction, of a great society. First, you codify generations-old injustices and discriminations in employment and education, closing almost all avenues of escape from poverty to millions of depressed families; then you force women in those families to bear children they do not want, guaranteeing another generation of people whom the rest of society can hate because they are "welfare burdens," they commit crimes, they are often sick, dirty, diseased.

How does a society lapse into the kind of mindless meanness that we are seeing in the House, in the Supreme Court and, yes, on the editorial pages of many newspapers across the land?

Some say it's just that this country has gone through a period of "hard times," and that an ugly dog-eat-dog atmosphere always pervades in such times of trouble.

Others say that the key is national leadership — that the "them" against "us" fear and suspicion which produced the Watergate hatreds and abuses is still with us.

It is obvious that our legacy of Mr. Watergate, Richard Nixon, is reflected week after week in chilling Supreme Court decisions reflecting a benighted mentality — including the recent ruling regarding abortions.

Those citing national leadership as the key to everything keep hoping that Jimmy Carter will step forth boldly and pull the nation to its senses. But Mr. Carter's own notions of religiosity may cause him to leave poor women abandoned when it comes to abortions. We shall have to wait to see whether — the Senate failing to restore sanity — Mr. Carter has the inclination or the nerve to challenge the House on either school desegregation or affirmative action.

The FPC's dictum

Most everyone is in favor of fuel conservation, but the Federal Power Commission's recent ruling affecting parts of Missouri seems a bit much.

The FPC ordered the Cities Service Gas Co. not to add any new natural gas customers in its Western Missouri territory after Jan. 1. This area includes Kansas City and several communities to the east, Sedalia, Lexington, Clinton and Marshall among them.

Cities Service and the Missouri Public Service Co. have taken strong exception to the FPC order. Both point out that with new supplies of natural gas coming onto the line from recently-discovered fields in Wyoming, the supply problem has been greatly improved.

The Missouri Public Service Commission also got in the act, and has asked the FPC for a new hearing. The PSC objects to the FPC calling the shots in Missouri in such a specific manner, and points out that the data used in the case are now more than two years old regarding Cities Service natural gas supplies.

As far as Sedalia is concerned, this stop-order will have a dampening effect on new development to some extent, affecting as it does residential, commercial and industrial construction.

We think the FPC should take a new look at its order in light of current conditions.

Adieu, Sedalia CC

The Sedalia Country Club, a local landmark since shortly after the turn of the century, may soon be just a memory. Club members voted this week to buy Walnut Hills Country Club as a followup to an earlier decision not to rebuild at the tornado-damaged site.

If some way could be found to turn the course into a municipal recreation area, it could be saved from commercial takeover. But that possibility appears remote, according to Park Board members.

That's a pity.

"I think I've finally pinpointed your problem — too much awareness!"

Neutron bomb destroys only life, not property. (News item)

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — As Senate judiciary chairman, owlish, old Jim Eastland has been an uncompromising spokesman for law and order. He would be expected, therefore, to demand the prosecution of an alleged lawbreaker, not to recommend him for high office.

Yet the 72-year-old curmudgeon from Mississippi has urged the White House to consider Kenneth Dupuy for a top energy post. It should be no secret, since we reported it in more than 900 newspapers last September, that Dupuy is under investigation for alleged bribery, sexual impropriety and misuse of federal funds.

The investigation forced Dupuy to resign as director of the Federal Energy Administration's regional office in Atlanta. The Justice Department, meanwhile, has reviewed the case and has sent it back to the FEA for further investigation. FEA sources tell us it has been assigned "top priority."

Yet the White House sent Dupuy to the FEA for an interview. This is normally a clear signal of White House support. It now looks as if he won't get an appointment. But the White House, apparently, tried to install him as one of the bosses of the agency that is investigating him.

Of course, the White House was under pressure from Eastland to restore Dupuy to power. The round-faced, close-mouthed Mississippi senator doesn't often raise his voice. But when he removes the dead cigar butt from his mouth and offers his views, the high muckamucks in Washington usually listen. For he has the power to kill laws, stall appointments and bog down the Senate.

A spokesman for Eastland told our

Merry-go-round

Senator's nominee under investigation associate, Marc Smolonsky, that Dupuy "did a good job" running the Atlanta office. Federal investigators, however, disagree. As we reported last September, Dupuy is under investigation for allegedly giving extra fuel allocations to gasoline distributors in return for gratuities.

Investigators established that Dupuy frequently used the apartment of William Corey, a gasoline and diesel fuel distributor, for trysts with a girl friend. At about the same time, Corey's firm, U.S. Transport Inc., had its gas and diesel fuel allocations raised by Dupuy's office. Some of the allocations, according to sources close to the case, were awarded to gas stations and truck stops that existed only on paper.

This isn't the first time Dupuy has been in trouble. In 1975, he was reprimanded for accepting transportation from an oil company to attend its Florida convention, where he stayed two days at the firm's expense.

He was also accused of misusing federal funds. He and his secretary often junketed together outside his region. A number of times he traveled to his Mexico, Tex., ranch allegedly at government expense.

We have been unable to locate Dupuy. But his attorney previously said there was "not anything to" the bribe allegations. The lawyer admitted his client had used Corey's apartment but insisted no favors had been given Corey in return.

Dupuy was not regional administrator, the attorney claimed, when the higher fuel allocations were awarded Corey. He added that the travel abuse charges against Dupuy were "piddly junk," and that he was cleared of them.

FLORIDA SEQUEL — More than a year ago, we sent our roving reporter, Hal Bernton, to Florida to investigate the working conditions of the migrant stoop laborers. Posing as a young drifter, he was recruited out of a flophouse in Immokalee to work on the nearby corporate farm of A. Duda and Sons.

He hunched over rows of tomatoes with the other workers, picking them for a penny a pound. The days were long, the sun hot, the fields infested with snakes. Pesticides on the tomato vines caused some workers to break out with painful rashes.

The workers lived in battered trailers, which were subdivided into tiny compartments. Bernton shared a cubicle, streaked with grime and stinking of urine, with another worker. They slept on filthy mattresses. The camp was located on a barren, dusty, wind-whipped stretch of sand. At the end of each week, the workers were paid barely enough to cover the cost of their overpriced meals and the wine they gulped down at the end of the day to dull their aches and pains. Some workers actually wound up owing their crew leader more than they had earned in the fields.

Since we published these reports, much has happened. The labor camp has been replaced by a new, $500,000 facility with modern trailers on a grassy site. A day care center has been added for the workers' children.

The Labor Department, confirming our account, found that the Duda camp mess halls were overcharging the impoverished workers for their meals. The corporate farm may now be forced to refund the huge overcharges.

The crew leader, who enforced his authority with a vicious dog, was fired. The Labor Department is after him for alleged federal violations.

Guide to cooking outdoors

By DOUG KNEIBERT

I always have a cringe of recognition when I see that TV commercial where the guy is barbecuing in his backyard and after several hours is still trying to get his fire started while gramps, his wife and kids are all starving to death.

I don't know who makes the charcoal briquets my wife buys, but I suspect they are gathered in the Petrified Forest. Then they are dipped in a fireproof sealer, just to make sure.

Considering the amount of charcoal lighter I use in a summer, I am thinking about having an underground tank installed as an economy measure. I'm the only one in my neighborhood who has to wear an asbestos suit to cook out.

Once the charcoal is finally lit, I can control the rate of burn by manipulating the drafts on my cooker. Theoretically, that is. What this often means is that the fire goes out completely. You usually discover this as your wife is coming out with the salad and you whisk away the hood of your cooker to reveal six chicken halves that look like they just cleared the plucker.

Smoke can also be a bother with my barbecuer. If it gets too thick you can have problems seeing your guests, and I have on occasion engaged in lively conversation with a smoke-shrouded chair, only to discover when it cleared that my companion left half an hour ago.

This summer the hazards of backyard cookery are compounded by the flies. We have a large mulberry tree in our backyard, and when it drops its berries, like now, every fly in eastern Pettis County gets the word. We kind of look at it as our contribution to wildlife conservation.

At any rate, the flies can pick a steak to its T-bone in a few seconds flat; so I usually toss everything on the grill at the same time and cook it to order — rare. If someone prefers his steak medium or well, I give him the tongs and let him go at it. That way I can't be blamed if things don't turn out right.

The backyard chef should be prepared to deal with flame-ups, which occur from time to time. Unless controlled, these will turn your meat a nasty black shade, and will cause contumely to be heaped upon your head by your wife and guests when it comes time to eat. I find a kid's water pistol effective to quench the flames, providing you have no kids around who will steal it and ruin your party by running around squirting everyone in the face.

Considering all the flaps you can get into, what is it that brings the American male back to his backyard cooker summer after summer? Is it some primordial urge left over from his prehistoric era?

Then again, the way things are going with the energy crisis, we all may be cooking over open fires before too long.

South drew trumps with two leads, cashed the ace of diamonds, finessed dummy's jack unsuccessfully and eventually went down one trick when diamonds failed to break, spades misbehaved scandalously and the defense failed to drop dead.

drawing trumps, South should cash the ace and king of diamonds and lead a club. If either opponent takes the tricks and leads a diamond or spade, South would be sure of his contract so the best defense would be a second club. This time, South should discard his small diamond.

The defense would have two tricks in, but no way to get more than one other. A third club lead would allow South to ruff in dummy and discard a spade. A spade lead would hold the defense to one spade trick and a diamond lead would also be hopeless.

Ann Landers

Sexual assault creates trauma

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago, when I was almost 14, I was sexually assaulted. That horrible nightmare is never completely out of my mind.

Whenever a guy puts his arm around me I get turned off. I just can't stand to be touched. Do you think maybe I just haven't met the right guy yet? No one knows of the terrible thing that happened to me and I'd prefer to keep it this way. Please tell me what to do. I worry a lot that my whole life is ruined. — Desperate

Dear D.: The trauma resulting from a sexual assault can create life-long problems unless something is done to help the victim overcome feelings of shame and anxiety.

You should have had counseling immediately. There are now Rape Crisis Centers in many cities. They offer precisely the kind of help you need.

There are other agencies that counsel psychologically disturbed people who can't pay. Contact Community Referral Service (phone book) or your county or state Mental Health Group. The Salvation Army and YWCA also provide excellent counseling services. Get going. You're two years late.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm so mad I could scream. Please print this letter for all mothers who feel they simply MUST clean the bedrooms of their grown children.

I am 20, female and pay $80 a month for room and board. When I'm not working I'm usually out. I'm not the neatest person in the world and my room does get messy but if it doesn't bother ME, why should it bother my mother? I keep telling her to keep the door closed and stay out of there. Every Sunday I clean it thoroughly.

My mother is a neurotic "Crazy Clean." She also likes to rearrange furniture. I almost broke my neck when I went to lie down where my bed used to be.

A few days ago my sister needed a pocketbook for school. I dumped the contents out of mine into a paper sack, gave it to her and got out my new one. It was late so I didn't put the paper bag in a drawer — just left it on the floor, next to my dresser.

The next day I looked for the bag and couldn't find it. I had a hunch what had happened but waited till I cooled off before I asked. Sure enough — my mother had thrown it out. "Thought it was garbage."

In that "garbage" was my address book, poems I had written, letters, receipts, reminder notes — things I'll never be able to replace.

What can I do about this? — Crazy Lady's Daughter

Dear Daughter: Your mother is a compulsive cleaner, so telling her to stay out of your room won't help. Buy a key and use it. After the recent disaster I'll bet you won't get much flak.

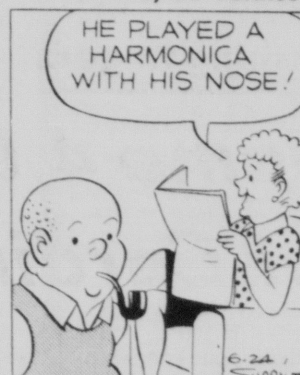

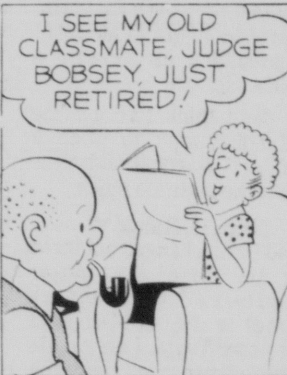

Dear Ann: It's time somebody wrote and told you what great things a spanking can do for a wife who behaves like a child. I speak from experience.

My wife was 17 when we married. She couldn't cook, wouldn't clean house or sew a button on a shirt. Just spoiled rotten, she was. I decided what the little brat needed was a good old-fashioned spanking so I put her right over my knee and let her have it. All it took was twice. Now she's a great little wife. Tell 'em, Annie. — King

Dear King (Kong, maybe?): Just because you married an immature child who responded to punishment befitting a five-year-old doesn't mean your approach is right. I feel sorry for you both.

Mariners earn split

Jones comes back to haunt Royals

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Does your heart brim with vengeance, Ruppert Jones?

No. "How can your heart be full of vengeance toward the organization that drafted you, gave you a chance in life and taught you to be a winner?"

Jones was most assuredly a winner Thursday night in leading the Seattle Mariners to an 8-6 victory over the team that made him available in the expansion draft, the Kansas City Royals.

The muscular 22-year-old centerfielder collected three hits and drove in a run in the 10-inning fray that allowed the Mariners to leave town with a split of the four-game series.

Jones was one of several promising outfield prospects in the Royals organization when he was brought up during the last two months of the 1976 season.

His first major league at-bat produced an RBI single. He collected two hits and three RBI his second appearance, and later had a three-hit game as the Royals drove to the Western Division title.

Yet the Royals, solidly entrenched with experienced outfielders, ordered him a ticket to the minor leagues this season.

"No way," Jones said Thursday night. "In the two months I was here I could see I was better than everybody they had. I knew my abilities, even if they didn't. And I'm not the kind of guy to sit on the bench either. I told them I'd come to spring training but I told them I wasn't going to sign a contract."

So advised, the Royals put him up for grabs in the expansion draft and the Mariners made him the first player taken. He's responded with 14 home runs, 46 RBI and a batting average nearing .270.

"They treated me badly those two months last year," Jones said. "But I don't have any hard feelings toward the organization. They gave me a chance to play."

"It doesn't give me any special thrill to beat the Royals. I still like the team and I know it's a great organization. Most of those guys are good friends of mine."

I want them to win every game they play, except when they play us."

With the game tied, 6-6, after nine, Dan Meyer lashed a double off Mark Littell and came around to score on a soft single by Craig Reynolds. Fred Patek's second error of the game allowed Bob Stinson to score the Mariners' eighth run.

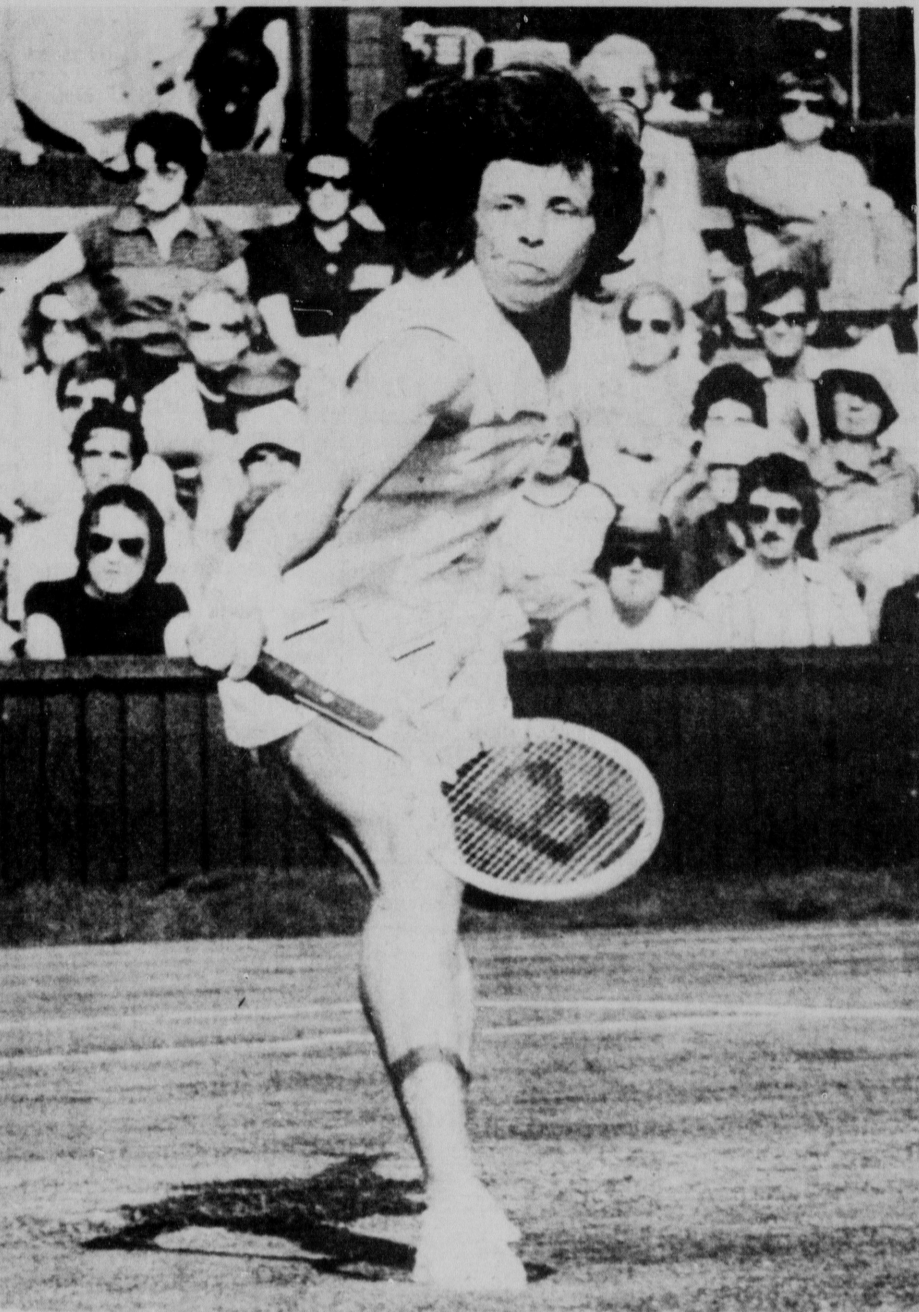

It was a see-saw battle from start to finish. George Brett tripled home a run in the Kansas City first, then the Mariners tied it on the first of Skip Jutze's three RBI.

Darrell Porter's two-run homer gave the Royals a two-run lead that lasted until Jones singled home a run in the third.

In the sixth, Jutze unloaded a two-run double and scored on a sacrifice bunt to give the Mariners a 5-3 advantage.

Amos Otis then doubled home a run and tied it up on Patek's ground out.

Bill Stein's RBI single in the seventh was matched by Cookie Rojas' run-scoring single in the eighth and the game went into extra innings.

Billie Jean advances

Former Wimbledon champion Billie Jean King continued her bid to recapture the title, beating Brazil's Maria Bueno 6-2, 7-5 Thursday in a third-round match.

New skipper has Indians winning

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

"Love and happiness" is behind the Cleveland Indians' eight-game winning streak, according to Rico Carty. But the four-hit pitching of Wayne Garland and the timely hitting of Buddy Bell and Carty figures in it, too.

"I think the change of managers has had a positive effect on me—not that I didn't get along with Frank Robinson," said Garland, who hurled the Indians to a 4-0 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Thursday night. "But Jeff (Torborg) is a former catcher and understands me as a pitcher better."

The Indians won their last two games under Robinson and have won all six since Torborg took over last Sunday.

"I hope this monotony keeps us," Torborg said.

"The team is real loose," said Carty, who clashed several times with Robinson.

"Love and happiness is all it is."

In other American League games Thursday, Minnesota clobbered Texas 12-2, California defeated Chicago 10-6, Boston downed Baltimore 7-3 and Seattle took 10 innings to nip Kansas City, 8-6.

There were no National League games scheduled.

Bell and Carty belted home runs to back Garland's pitching. The right-hander held Toronto hitless until the sixth, but said he didn't think about the possibility of throwing a no-hitter.

"I don't think I've got the outstanding stuff to pitch a no-hitter," Garland said. "I'm around the plate too much."

Twins 12, Rangers 2

Rod Carew banged out three hits to raise his major league-leading batting average to .395 as Minnesota hammered Texas. Larry Hise drove in two runs for the Twins, while winner Dave Goltz, 7-5, celebrated his 28th birthday by scattering nine hits.

The loss spoiled the debut of Rangers interim Manager Connie Ryan, who took over when Eddie Stanky quit after managing only one game.

Angels 10, White Sox 6

California scored three runs in the sixth inning and five runs in the seventh to power past Chicago. Mario Guerrero drove in three runs with a pair of singles and a sacrifice fly and Bobby Bonds and Terry Humphrey both had two-run singles to lead the attack.

Red Sox 7, Orioles 3

Butch Hobson drove in two runs with his 11th home run and a double as Boston continued its record-breaking slugging. Hobson's homer extended Boston's record streak to 30 round-trippers in nine games. The Red Sox have won seven in a row and 16 of their last 18.

Ferguson Jenkins, 7-5, tossed a six-hitter for the victory.

Wimbledon crowd excited by twins

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — A pair of tennis twins from Onalaska, Wis., Tim and Tom Gullikson, have caught the imagination of the massive crowds at the centenary Wimbledon Tennis Championships this week.

Oldtimers were even mentioning the legendary tennis-playing twins, Willie and Ernie Renshaw, who dominated the fledgling Wimbledon tournaments of the 1880s when tennis was still played in long trousers and straw hats.

The Renshaws learned their tennis on an asphalt court at school, and the story is much the same for the Gulliksons, 25-year-olds who picked up most of their tennis savvy in public parks playing against each other.

Tim is a stocky right-hander, and Tom, older by five minutes, a lefty. Otherwise, it's almost impossible to tell them apart.

For four gruelling hours under a hot sun Thursday,

Tim fought his heart out on a packed outside court, with many in the record 37,815 crowd straining their necks to get a glimpse of his battle against No. 7 men's singles seed, Raul Ramirez of Mexico.

Matching the masterful Mexican at his own game with finesse at the net, Gullikson took the first two sets 6-3, 6-4, lost the third 3-6 and wasted four match points in the fourth which Ramirez won 9-8 on a tiebreaker.

Ramirez, with his Mexican bandit mustache, sprayed a strained stomach muscle with painkiller between games, while Gullikson suffered cramps in the closing stages of the tight deciding set as every point drew oohs and aahs from the crowd.

After breaking in the fifth game to go 3-2, Gullikson reached 5-4 and was serving for the match. He lost another four match points before piledriving a serve which Ramirez could only hit into the net for the match.

The muscular American whooped in relief, the crowd burst into prolonged applause and Gullikson took a spare tennis ball and clouted it high over the grandstands.

Californian Billy Martin also turned in a big upset, dumping Guillermo Vilas of Argentina in straight sets. The top men's seeds, Jimmy Connors and Bjorn Borg, posted victories as did the top women's seeds, Chris Evert and Martina Navratilova.

After his match Gullikson explained why he kept looking up to the players' restaurant where his wife Rosemary, and his brother Tom and his wife Julie were watching and rooting for him.

"We always try to watch each other play—it helps," said an exhausted Tim after the match. He now meets Brian Fairlie of New Zealand in the third round.

Flashing fingers

Game 4,000 a milestone for Cardinal stalwart

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "It's a paradox," said Lou Adame. "Even though you're tensed up every minute, you're relaxed doing something you love."

Adame, from his glass-enclosed booth at press level, will flip the scoreboard switches for his 4,000th major league game tonight at Busch Stadium and shows little sign of slowing down.

"My next goal is 5,000 games and my eighth World Series," said Adame, 54, whose fast fingers and unerring eye are his chief allies in the flashing of electronic signals.

"One time years ago a guy asked me, 'How many flashes do you think you have a game?' and I said 250. That's 250,000 more flashes to go. I think I can make it."

Adame, a St. Louis native who spent his boyhood in Barstow, Okla., was only 18 when he reported to St. Louis Browns president Bill DeWitt to audition for a job as field announcer at Sportsman's Park in 1941.

"Bill said, 'Look, we're starting a new electronic scoreboard...a $50,000 one,'" Adame recalled, chuckling. "My gosh, now they're paying $2 million. The console I had in front of me had only 35 to 40 switches compared to about 135 to 140 today. You're practically an engineer."

Adame, adapting quickly to a multitude of tasks involved in signaling balls and strikes in addition to outs and innings and other games' scores, doubled as the young press box announcer during the 1946

World Series between the St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Red Sox.

That and a doubleheader in 1954 during which Stan Musial hit five home runs still stand out as career highlights for a man who has also worked four All-Star games, the last in 1966.

A sidekick of the late Dizzy Dean for recreated broadcasts of out-of-town Browns games in the 1940s, Adame also played host to his own "Diamond Diary" pregame show.

Field cut to 16 in state tourney

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Bryant Barnes, thanks to his wife, is playing the best golf of his life.

And, conveniently enough, the current site happens to be the Missouri State Amateur Golf Championship at the Country Club of Missouri.

Barnes, a Kansas City resident, knocked off Barry Brown of St. Louis, 2 and 1, Thursday as the amateur field was narrowed to 16 players for the two 18-hole rounds today.

Others advancing, despite rain and soggy grounds, were defending champ Jimmy Jackson of St. Louis, 1975 winner Bruce Hollowell of Springfield and the 1973 titlist, Buddy Godwin of Poplar Bluff.

Barnes, a 39-year-old investment broker, said that his play has improved greatly since his wife began playing golf on weekends. Now she shoots in the mid-80s.

"Before all this, I just stood up and hit it," he said. "I didn't know what I was doing."

"The last three years I started taking lessons from Stan (Thirsk, a Kansas City pro). I still don't know all that I'm doing, but since all this happened the best golf I have played has been in the last years."

Jackson eliminated Don Dupske, also of St. Louis, 2-up, while Holloway defeated George White of Springfield.

Riggs still out for that big hustle

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — His notorious "women's lib" hustle in 1973 has netted him $1.5 million, says Bobby Riggs, and the dividends are still rolling in.

"Who said I have gone into hiding?" the 59-year-old con man of the courts said during a break in Wimbledon's 100th anniversary tennis festivities. "Almost every day I get a challenge to take on some celebrity or local hero somewhere and, if the price is right, I catch the next plane out."

Riggs still is not particular and he confesses he is amenable to a broad range of ground rules.

He will play tennis carrying an umbrella, holding gorilla on a chain, using park benches and conceding the alleys. If that isn't agreeable, he will play golf standing on one leg or using right-handed clubs left-handed.

He will bet a bundle on his ability to flip playing cards in a upturned hat from 10 feet away, to guess which sparrow flies off a telephone wire first and how many golf balls he can chip into a partially opened bureau drawer from a hotel room rug.

Wee Bobby remains sport's consummate gambler.

"I'm going to play Renee Richards (tennis) transsexual) in London, Ont., July 10," he said. "They wouldn't let her play at Wimbledon, on the women's tour or in World Team Tennis."

"They asked me and I said, 'Sure, what's the action?'" When they said $10,000 winner-take-all, Bobby started making plane reservations.

Riggs is here as one of the former Wimbledon champions, preparing with Don Budge, Gardner Mulloy, Pancho Gonzales and others for the battle of former stars here next week. In his first Wimbledon appearance, Riggs made a sweep of the men's singles, doubles and mixed doubles in 1939 and went on to take the U.S. Open crown at Forest Hills.

The idea of a mixed match involving an over-aged male star and a top woman player flashed like an electric light bulb in Bobby's fertile mind in 1968 after he had seen a friend, Johnny Fonce, lose a match to Maria Bueno in Los Angeles.

Bobby issued a challenge to anyone who would listen. Billie Jean King ignored it. Margaret Court accepted. Playing in a remote real estate development in Ramona, Calif., Riggs psyched Mrs. Court by walking out with a bouquet of red roses, then won easily 6-2, 6-1.

Billie Jean was chagrined. The TV networks suddenly got interested. The result was the now famous "challenge of the sexes" in Houston's Astrodome in 1973.

Billie Jean went into seclusion and trained like a monk.

Bobby took the opposite course. He lived on vitamin pills — 400 a day, surrounded himself with buxom Hollywood beauties, never slept and lost in straight sets.

"I underestimated her," Bobby apologizes now. "I didn't train. I let her pick the fast court surface. But it was good for both of us. We got $50,000 each from television. I was on the cover of Time. Both of us were in demand for TV talk shows and commercials."

"Me? I gotta find that one more big hustle."

Lietzke, McCord share early lead

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Bruce Lietzke, who faded after a dazzling start this year, says he's found his golf swing again. Gary McCord says he's finally located the press room.

"I thought the press room was where you got your clothes laundered," the stocky Californian joked after carding a five-under-par 67 Thursday to share the first-round lead with Lietzke at the Western Open.

Bill Mallon, who has been on the pro tour for 1½ years, was third at 68. Five golfers, including defending champ Al Geiberger, were two strokes back at 69.

McCord was escorted by tour officials to the press interview area after his round. Though he hasn't won since joining the tour in 1973, he settled easily into the unfamiliar surroundings.

"I just went out and played like everybody else," said the 29-year old of the round in which he dropped 30-foot putts for birdies on his first and last holes.

Of previous tournaments this year, he said, "I'd get off to a good start then get a 74, 75 or 76. It's like riding a bike up a hill. You pedal hard, but you don't get anywhere."

McCord said his putting, which suffered because "my setup was all screwy," has improved with the help of fellow pro John Schroeder.

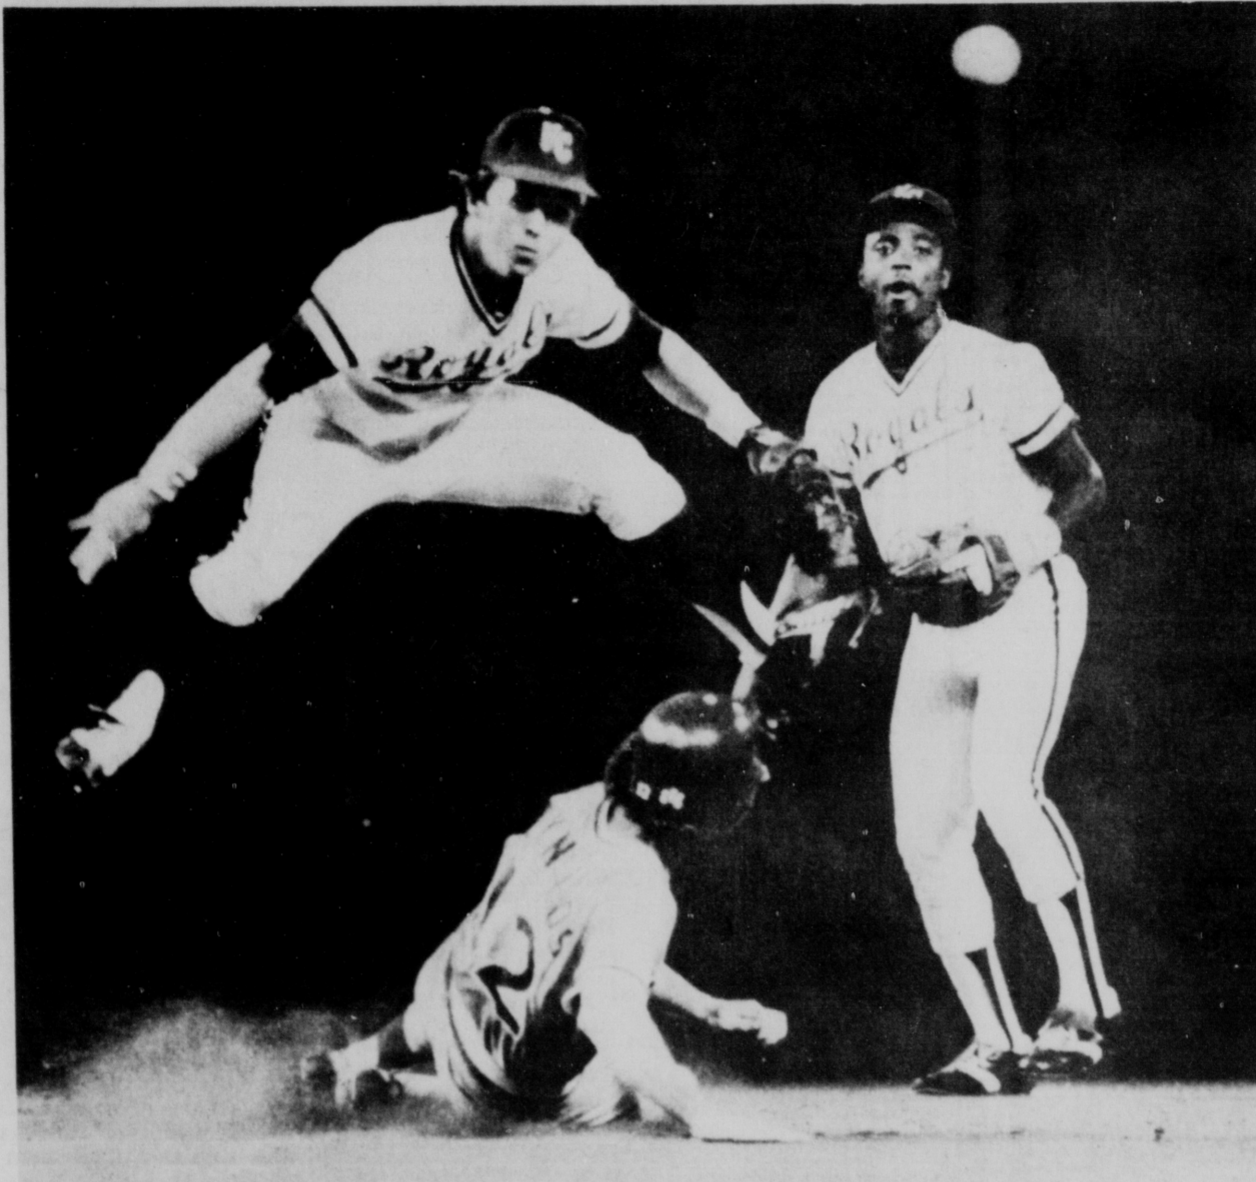

Lietzke also has had help in displaying again the magic that made him the talk of the early 1977 tour. He says his brother Duane watched him on the practice tee and confirmed that his swing was back.

"I must have gotten into a bad habit of picking the club up real quick" after he had won the Tucson and Hawaiian Opens and finished second at the Bob Hope Desert Classic by mid-February.

Then he took off three weeks because of his father's death and lost his touch.

Tied for fourth at 69 were Chi Chi Rodriguez, Frank Beard, Andy North, Bob Murphy and Geiberger. The pack at 70 was made up of Vic Rsgalado, Mac McLendon, Tom Watson, J.C. Snead and David Lundstrom.

Four strokes off the lead at 71 were Curtis Strange, Rik Massengale, Ed Dougherty, Phil Hancock, Bob Gilder, Dave Sheff and Jeff Mitchell.

Seattle slow

Seattle's Craig Reynolds is too late with his slide at second to break up this double play during Thursday night's game. Shortstop Fred Patek goes high in the air to avoid the collision, as Frank White watches the play.

Wants to keep job

Rangers turn to Ryan

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Luchesi to Stanky to Ryan is not a famous double-play combination. It's just this week's combination of managers for the Texas Rangers.

Frank Luchesi was fired as the Rangers' skipper Wednesday, and replaced — supposedly through 1978 — by Eddie Stanky.

But a homesick Stanky abruptly quit Thursday after one game and third base coach Connie Ryan, 57, was named interim manager by Texas executive vice president Eddie Robinson.

The Rangers were 31-31 under Luchesi this season, then 1-0 under Stanky after rallying to a 10-8 triumph over the Minnesota Twins Wednesday night. But under Ryan, they're 0-1 after a 12-2 loss Thursday to Minnesota.

Though there has been no official announcement, it is expected that Ryan will manage the team through the end of the season. Robinson said no decision would be made until he discusses the matter with owner Brad Corbett.

Ryan was hired by the Rangers as a coach prior to this season. Before that, he coached and scouted for the Atlanta Braves from 1971-76.

Ryan last managed in 1968 in the minor leagues. Earlier speculation had him replacing Luchesi, but Robinson said flatly at that time that Ryan would never replace Luchesi as the Rangers' manager.

"Now we have a completely different situation," said Robinson. "I see no reason why Connie couldn't run the ball club until such a time as we needed somebody else."

Ryan learned of Stanky's decision only three hours before Thursday's game.

Texas arrived here Thursday night for a four-game weekend series with the California Angels.

After arriving in Anaheim, Ryan said he was "just taking things as they come. I'd be guessing if I said anything now. I'll know better in four or five days."

Cauthen winning again

NEW YORK (AP) — The scene opens with the hero breaking into a grin after watching a rerun of his winning ride in what was his first race after being sidelined a month because of injuries suffered in a spill.

Next the chorus (several jockeys) shout, off-key: "Steve Cauthen is back."

Cameras click and grind. Writers write.

Hollywood would have loved it. Billing almost certainly would have gone to the winning horse — Little Miracle.

But it wasn't a screen play. It was just another true life adventure in the story of Steve Cauthen, a kid from Kentucky who has shocked big time thoroughbred racing.

"That a way Stevie," roared a bettor as Cauthen rode Little Miracle into the winner's circle after the second race Thursday at Belmont Park. "We missed ya."

And they were glad to see him, railbirds and box-seat patrons alike, cheering and applauding the 17-year old from the time he appeared in the paddock until he disappeared in the tunnel leading to the jockey's room after riding his 27th winner of the year, tops in the nation.

"I enjoyed my rest when it happened," Cauthen said a couple of hours before returning in describing how he felt for about two weeks after suffering a broken wrist and a rib and cuts of the face and hands when Bay Streak fell during a race at Belmont.

"... then I got better, and when you get better, you want to race."

Cauthen returned to New York last Monday and exercised horses for the next three days in preparing for what turned out to be a hero's welcome.

"Hey Steve, Hey Steve," fans shouted as Cauthen appeared in the saddling area.

NHL Barons sold before deadline

CHICAGO (AP) — National Hockey League owners will have to get around Jack Kent Cooke of the Los Angeles Kings if they hope to make any advancement towards a merger with the World Hockey Association.

"It's one against 17," said R. Alan Eagleson, head of the NHL Players Association late Thursday night after a series of meetings involving the owners, board of governors and members of the Players Association.

While the owners refuse to hold any news conferences or to make any announcements, it was learned that the sale of the Cleveland Barons had been completed prior to the deadline set by the governors and that the team would compete next season.

Eagleson met with newsmen and said, "We are willing to work all summer for a solution (to the prospective merger). We came to these meetings with our position very clear. We made a series of suggestions and told them, 'Here is our package. Can you buy it?'"

The package includes everything from compensation on free agents to how many teams should make up the NHL in case of expansion.

The league now stands at 18 teams with possibly six WHA teams awaiting entrance. To preserve competitive balance, the player group does not want a league of more than 20 teams.

"The WHA people should take a serious look at matters and consider if six teams can't get in, then maybe they should try for four," said Eagleson.

Eagleson said suggestions have been made that possibly five WHA teams be accepted while three NHL teams be dropped or combinations of teams be made to get the number down to 20.

Eagleson said WHA teams like Quebec, New England, Edmonton, Winnipeg and Cincinnati could be accepted and merged with teams like Denver, St. Louis and Cleveland. He added that would be logical but unlikely.

In case of expansion, the current collective bargaining agreement between the owners and players would be open for renegotiation.

Eagleson also said that any money the players receive from expansion would go toward their pension fund.

With the start of the hockey season less than four months away, Eagleson said a decision must be reached soon. If matters are not resolved Friday, the third and final day of the present meetings, then meetings might be held periodically the rest of the summer.

HOME OWNERSHIP

Why is it that in spite of rising costs, Americans are buying single family dwellings at an ever increasing rate? A survey of buyers show that they are convinced that home ownership is a solid investment in the lives of their families and their economic future. In no other way can a family gain the security of the best place in which to raise children. The investment in a home now protects a family from continuing inflation, since the value of the home increases and their investment in it remains fixed. Looking to retirement, the ownership of a home can well be the difference between a meager existence and a comfortable lifestyle. The increase in property values over the past years is perhaps the best reason to invest now. Since you can feel sure that your property will continue to increase in value.

Dining discovery

Whiskers, a six-week-old kitten, pays no heed to labels or to the adage about what curiosity does to cats. A sniff of the can is in order first before the inquisitive kitten throws caution to the wind and plunges head first into the dog food. With sufficient experimental data gathered, Whiskers emerges with an opinionated view of canine cuisine.

Union executive board to conduct strike vote

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The executive board of the Communications Workers of America decided Thursday night to conduct a strike authorization vote among its half-million Bell System workers.

A yes vote would allow union leaders to call a strike.

The decision to hold the balloting was announced after a closed-door, standing-room-only meeting on the union's negotiations for a new Bell contract.

The union is holding its 39th convention in Kansas City, with about 2,000 delegates attending.

Glenn E. Watts, CWA president, said the vote would be taken by mailed ballot and should be complete by July 22.

The union's three-year pact with Bell expires at midnight Aug. 6. Negotiations began May 19 and are to resume

June 29.

A walkout would affect CWA members in about 10,000 cities and towns across the country.

Watts cited Bell's "hard-line" approach as a reason for the strike vote authorization.

"We believe that a strike vote is the only answer to the kind of things that the industry has said to us in bargaining which indicated to us that they are going to take a hard line," Watts said.

The union president said Ball had made no counter-offer to the CWA's proposal and emphasized that union members were "not in the mood to settle short."

He cited "oversupervision" and improper administration of the company's absentee control program.

Israel's Begin rejects pullout

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin says his new Israeli government will not "under any circumstances" give up all of the West Bank or allow a Palestinian state to be formed there and in the Gaza Strip.

To do so would put "every city and home in Israel" in Arab artillery sights, Begin told the World Zionist Congress Thursday.

Begin's first major speech since he was sworn in Tuesday in effect rejected President Carter's statements that Israel should withdraw from the territory it captured in the 1967 war "with minor exceptions" and that the Palestinians should be given a "homeland," which Israel interprets as support for a Palestinian state made up of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

"Israel will not be able, under any circumstances, to withdraw to the June 4, 1967, lines, and will not do it," Begin declared. "We will not agree under any circumstances that in Judea and Samaria (the Biblical names for the West Bank) and the Gaza Strip, a state called Palestinian will arise."

"In these two proposals floating around the world, there is a threat to the very existence of the Jewish state. To remove such proposals from the international agenda; we will in the full sense of the word be defending our lives. Throughout its history, when the people of Israel have been called upon to defend their lives, they have done so heroically, and they have overcome."

The congress responded with prolonged applause.

Begin said "the word non-negotiable is not in my dictionary," and "there will be no preconditions (to negotiations with the Arabs) by any party."

But he warned that Israel will accept nothing less than a full peace treaty and will not agree to a declaration of nonbelligerency by Egypt, Syria and Jordan.

A declaration of non-belligerency has no standing in international law and would not be "worth the paper it is written on," the prime minister said. He cited Italian dictator Benito Mussolini's declaration of nonbelligerency at the beginning of World War II and his declaration of war as soon as the German conquest of France was assured.

State Fair discussed at meeting

Kiwanians heard a report on the State Fair at their luncheon meeting Thursday at the Bothwell Hotel.

Fair Director Jerry Hermann said the Fair is making every effort to cut its operating deficit, pointing out that the state contribution to the Fair's operating budget has been cut from $434,000 to $260,000 in three years.

Hermann said the Fair's request of $423,000 for capital improvements this year was lost in the fight over a state prison, adding that this figure represented a "no frills" budget. Separate bids on badly-needed restroom facilities on the Fairgrounds were recently rejected because they exceeded the architect's estimates, he stated.

In response to a question, Hermann said he felt a consulting firm's study of the State Fairgrounds, completed last year, "was a waste." He said the study gave state officials "nothing" in the way of practical guidelines for improvements that could be made at a reasonable cost.

Hermann said he was glad to see the 50-cent increase in Fair admission charges approved by the legislature this year, which had been sought for the last four years. He said this will bring about $100,000 extra into the Fair in revenues.

The Rev. Greg Hibbard introduced the program.

MU appeals gay ruling

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has been asked to reconsider a decision requiring the University of Missouri to grant official recognition to an organization of homosexual students.

The court ruled June 8 that the university must recognize the gay student group, thereby entitling the group to use of university facilities and student activity funds.

But university lawyers, at the request of Van Williams, president of the board of curators, filed a motion earlier this week seeking a rehearing on the ruling.

University officials have said they will await the outcome of the hearing request before deciding whether to appeal the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Polly's pointers

Vinegar removes salt stains

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — I find that washing walls is much easier when done with a sponge mop. This saves climbing on chairs and ladders and the job is done much quicker without a lot of scrubbing. — CAROL.

DEAR READERS — Do remember to start at the bottom rather than the top just as when washing with a sponge or cloth. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — I am answering M.D. When I made a long-distance move and my furniture was to be stored for three months the mover told me to put charcoal pieces, such as you use in an outdoor grill, in both my refrigerator and freezer so they would stay smelling sweet. I did this and there was no odor. Now I keep one or two such pieces in them all the time. I think they work better than soda. — F.H.

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell Mary Jo that one way I use plastic bread bags is to hold popcorn to take to the drive-in movies. They are also good for holding leftover popcorn. — NORMA.

DEAR POLLY — Mary Jo could use her plastic bread wrappers to hold sandwiches made for lunch and that are first wrapped in plastic wrap. They can be frozen and there is no more morning sandwich making. One can tell at a glance which ones are wanted. They are fresh as just-made.

After wrapping meat that is to go in the freezer in foil or plastic wrap put the packages in empty bread wrappers and you can see what the meat is.

Put one or two such wrappers in the children's tote bags to hold shoes or sneakers when they are wearing boots to school. — BARB.

DEAR POLLY — There are so many ways Mary Jo could use her leftover plastic bread wrappers. I use them to cover hobby projects so they do not get dusty. Also they are great for holding clotheslines when not in use. Store clean, used paint brushes in them and they will be all together. Also keeping small garden tools in them usually prevents rusting. — JAMES.

DEAR POLLY — and Mary Jo — I give my plastic bread bags to the newspaper carrier boy so he can use them to protect his papers on rainy days and not have to buy bags. — CONNIE.

DEAR POLLY — When eggs stick to a carton do not struggle with them and perhaps break one or two. Set the carton in the sink, pour water in it and let it set for a while. The eggs will come out easily. — MRS. D.A.W.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — There is a ring of salt on the carpet in my car that goes around the brake and gas pedals. I have tried to remove this with soap and water and upholstery cleaner but to no avail. Can you suggest something, I do not want the salt to eat through the carpet. — SUE.

DEAR SUE — I suggest that you try a strong solution of white vinegar and water. This is most satisfactory for removing salt rings from boots. — POLLY.

Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

Reggae music—and the curious Rastafarian cult from which it sprang on the Caribbean island of Jamaica—will be among the subjects explored on 'NOW,' a look at what is happening—and is about to happen—in life styles, music, art, fashion and other areas. The program, a pilot for a magazine program combining news and entertainment, will be presented Thursday, June 30. Pictured here is Ras Karbi, a composer and performer featured in the reggae story.

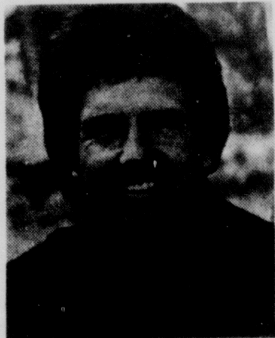

ABC/Dot Records has announced the signing of Tom Bresh to an exclusive, long-term recording contract.

Bresh comes to ABC hot on the heels of two country smashes—'Home Made Love' and 'Sad Country Love Song.' Bresh won several awards as Best New Male Vocalist-Country last year and is a protege of the great Merle Travis. His current single, 'Until I Met You,' will be included on 'Kicked Back,' his upcoming debut album on ABC/Dot. The album was produced by Jimmy Bowen.

Band' was produced by Neil Wilburn for Free Flow Productions.

Jeanne Pruett has parked her yellow travel van, 'Aluminum Chicken' and purchased a new executive motor home. Named the 'Loose Goose,' the motor home is equipped with a complete kitchen, bedrooms, etc. "Now I can travel on the road and not miss out on making homemade biscuits and cornbread," said Jeanne. "I'll be the 'Galloping Gourmet' of the highway!" The newest single from Jeanne is entitled, 'She's Still All Over You.' Written by noted Nashville songwriters Wayland Holyfield and Bob McDill, 'She's Still All Over You,' a country ballad, will be a good addition to country jukeboxes. The single was produced by Nashville's Chip Young.

The MCA debut album from Merle Haggard has been released. Entitled 'Ramblin' Fever,' the album comes on the heels of chart action on the first single culled from it, 'If We're Not Back In Love By Monday.' The bulk of 'Ramblin' Fever' was recorded in Nashville and produced by veteran songwriter/producer/artist, Hank Cochran. Two of the tracks on the album ('If We're Not Back In Love By Monday' and 'I Think It's Gone Forever') were produced by longtime Haggard associates Fuzzy Owen and Ken Nelson.

Good music, played well, crosses all musical classifications, a point demonstrated in the MCA Records debut album, 'The Vassar Clements Band.' Led by Vassar Clements, the man who has been called the premier fiddler in the world today, The 'Vassar Clements Band' is a fusion of many various types of American music—country, bluegrass, jazz, blues, and rock. The album adds new life to tried and true material, with a bevy of brand new songs, including a few of Vassar's own. 'The Vassar Clements

Grant Turner has been a Grand Ole Opry announcer for 32 years already, and he plans to continue. He has hosted the Ernest Tubbs Record Jamboree on WSM for 22 years and Lester Flatt's Martha White Show for over 20 years. He has been a recording artist, movie actor and emcee of countless major country music shows, and in 1975 he was inducted into the Country Music Disc Jockey Hall of Fame. So what else is there for a country deejay to do?

Syndication is one answer. Presently, Turner is working with the Drifting Cowboys and with Opry sideman Joe Edwards on two separate syndicated radio shows. Personal appearances with various country music package shows are also in the works.

Waiting for Godot

Samuel Beckett's tragicomedy, WAITING FOR GODOT, performed by the Los Angeles Actors' Theatre, will be presented Wednesday, June 29 on PBS. The play is part of the GREAT PERFORMANCES series.

WAITING FOR GODOT is considered a landmark in the literature of contemporary drama. On the surface, it tells the story of two tramps, Vladimir (Dana Elcar, left) and Estragon (Donald Moffat, center), waiting in the middle of a lonely country road, for 'Godot,' who is constantly referred to but never arrives. They encounter two other men, the dominant Pozzo (Ralph Waite, right) and submissive Lucky (Bruce French), and the foursome tackle one another with a lengthy series of questions and challenges about life's experiences and its meaning. By the play's end, nothing has been resolved, the sought-after Godot is still just around the next bend, and the two tramps are set to argue their fate for all eternity.

Commenting about the message in WAITING FOR GODOT, Dan Sullivan wrote in the Los Angeles Times, "What did it all mean?... (but) we know that larger things are in the air, that the tramps are more than tramps, that Godot is more than Godot. We know it's a parable, not an anecdote. We sense that for the actors it's a parable about faith, not about self-deception."

The Los Angeles Actors' Theatre has been highly praised for their recent production of WAITING FOR GODOT at the Oxford Playhouse. "Simply brilliant," wrote the Herald-Examiner. "It's visceral and with the same kind of emotional wallop as Sylvester Stallone's 'Rocky' from start to finish, or in Beckett's terms, from start to start."

The company was organized approximately two years ago under the direction of Ralph Waite, who is well-known in the leading role in 'The Waltons.' The organization of professional actors, directors and others has operated as a free theater and has been repeatedly commended. They were named by the Los Angeles Drama Critics Circle as the 1977 recipients of the Margaret Harford Award for 'Distinguished and Consistent Contribution to Southern California Theatre.'

Check your local PBS station for broadcast day and time.

Profile

Jack Klugman

After 30 years of playing almost every character imaginable—from detective to hoodlum to doctor to gambler—Jack Klugman has found a very appealing role that combines medicine and investigation in his NBC-TV series, 'Quincy.'

For Klugman, his return to drama is a matter of satisfying a yen. "When I do a lot of comedy, I always get a yen for drama, just as a person gets a yen for a piece of chocolate," Klugman explained. "But the funny part is, if I do a lot of drama, I never get a yen to do comedy."

Klugman, a native of Philadelphia, Pa., attended Carnegie Tech before deciding on acting. Once his mind was made up, he went to and enrolled in a dramatics course at the American Theatre Wing.

To support himself, he worked as a postal employee and a housepainter. Those years were spent with another struggling actor, Charles Bronson, in a $14-a-week apartment. Klugman learned his craft with him and other friends such as Ossie Davis, Rod Steiger and George Roy Hill performing in drafty cellars and converted churches.

He considers his first real break in acting an appearance with Kim Stanley in 'St. Joan,' and his second, opposite Rod Steiger in 'Stevedore.' He then spent 10 years in summer stock, gaining invaluable experience in such plays as 'The Petrified Forest' and 'Born Yesterday.'

On his return to New York, he understudied in 'Mr. Roberts' before taking the role of the doctor in the hit play starring Henry Fonda. Among his Broadway credits are a revival of 'Golden Boy,' 'Gypsy' and 'Tchin Tchin.'

His entrance into TV began in the early days of live productions, such as 'The Velvet Alley' on 'Playhouse 90.' He has more than 400 TV credits including his 1963 Emmy-winning portrayal of a blacklisted actor in the 'Blacklist' episode of 'The Defenders' and his role in 'The Odd Couple.'

His motion picture credits include '12 Angry Men,' 'The Days of Wine and Roses,' 'I Could Go On Singing' and 'Goodbye Columbus.'
